GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

OUTSIDE PEACHES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says: These have set a heavy crop of fruit, and all we have said as to consistent thinning of the indoor crop applies to the outside trees, although the final thinning will not be until after it is found the trees' fruit is safely stoned, for nature is apt at times to do a good deal of thinning herself. This is easily ascertained by cutting open a fruit, which if displaying the firm stone is a sure test, after which, and some delay in stone formation, swelling goes ahead under encouragement of feeding and kindly syringing until such time as fully swelled and commencing to colour, when syringing must be stopped, and after which it is not advisable to use manure water, which affects the flavour of the fruit.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

TABLE CHICKENS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says: There is a large business done from this on to the end of the season at holiday resorts in table birds, and those who live near seaside places will find this very remunerative. There are boarders, lodgers, hotel visitors and restaurant diners to be supplied, and if the poultry-producer could get into touch with some of the principal houses he might be able to secure a good business every year. But, apart from this special feature, table chickens are always in demand, and with suitable breeds and proper management yield a good profit.

The hatching out and rearing of chickens from this on require special treatment, and more especially in connection with the stock birds. The same cock and hens that have been used in the breeding-pen all the season are quite unsuitable. These birds need a rest, and freshly-mated birds of last autumn-hatched pullets should be employed for the production of late chickens. To hatch with success in fertility and strength of germ we must mate up breeding-pens for the succeeding season.

Another thing that needs attention for such birds is the ground on which the chickens are reared. A permanent rearing ground for continuous work is most unsuitable and fatal to success. Each season's birds should be brought up on a new site, and late-hatched chickens will never succeed on the early raising ground. Both birds and soil need to be changed.

IRISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

TRINITY LAW SITTINGS.

NEW TERM OPENED.

SOME IMPORTANT ACTIONS.

The Trinity law sittings were opened in Dublin Castle yesterday on the conclusion of the usual meeting of the judges and benchers in the Benchers' Chambers. All the judges were present.

The Chief Justice, Mr. Justice FitzGibbon and Mr. Justice Murnaghan sat in the Supreme Court to hear applications regarding the listing of appeals. Mr. Justice Meredith and Mr. Justice Johnston went to their respective Courts and fixed dates for the hearing of a number of actions appearing in their lists, and Mr. Justice O'Byrne disposed of several ex parte motions. To-day Mr. Justice Meredith will open the business of the Central Criminal Court in Green street.

THE ERNE FISHERY CASE.

The appeal in the case of Moore and others against the Attorney-General and others, commonly known as the Erne fishery case, was mentioned in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., for the plaintiffs and respondents, said that he would like to have the appeal taken on the 1st of next month, so that it might be finished before the Long Vacation.

The Chief Justice stated that owing to the large number of appeals listed for hearing the Court had great difficulty in arranging the dates on which particular appeals would be taken. The appeal mentioned by Mr. Jellett would be taken within the next ten days, and as they were anxious to have it finished before the Long Vacation, he suggested that counsel engaged in the case might condense their arguments during the hearing.

Mr. Jellett said that he was satisfied with that arrangement.

Mr. Lavery, K.C., for the Attorney-General, also stated that he was satisfied with the arrangement. He informed the Court that there had been some documents in Latin before the High Court at the trial of the action, with copies in English, and as these documents were in the hands of the solicitor for the plaintiff they were anxious to know whether the Supreme Court would require the documents in Latin for reference at the hearing of the appeal, as well as the copies.

Mr. Jellett said that the solicitor would have all the Latin documents, with the copies, in Court at the hearing.

The Chief Justice said that there would be no trouble about the matter, as the documents would be in Court.

A PLAINTIFF'S DEATH.

In a case in Mr. Justice Meredith's list of actions, Mr. M. J. Ryan, K.C., stated that the plaintiff had disappeared; his clothes were found at the seaside, and an application was being made for liberty to presume his death. It had been necessary to get an order to continue the action, and since then the solicitor for the plaintiff also had died

Mr. Justice Meredith allowed the case to stand over until the next term.

IMPORTANT ACTIONS.

There are many important cases for trial during the present term, which continues until the end of next month, and it is not likely that all the cases listed will be disposed of during that time.

In the Supreme Court there are some reserved judgments to be delivered and thirty-eight appeals for hearing. Two of the judgments relate to the remuneration of asylum attendants. In one of these the appeal was by the plaintiffs in the consolidated cases of John Thistle and others, mental hospital attendants, against the County Councils of Monaghan and Cavan from a judgment given in the High Court allowing an appeal brought on behalf of the defendants from a decision of Circuit Judge Devitt giving the plaintiffs decrees for sums claimed to be due to them for arrears of salary.

In the other the appeal was by the defendants in the case of Woods and others, mental hospital nurses and attendants, against the Corporation of Dublin and others, from a judgment given in the High Court in favour of the plaintiffs in their claim for a declaration that they were entitled to remuneration on the basis of their contract of service.

A third judgment is in connection with a decision of the Railway Tribunal regarding Limerick rates, and another deals with a question of agency in solicitors' services to the Gresham Hotel Company arising out of the destruction of that building in 1922.

THE FIDDOWN LINE.

Ten of the appeals are in the nature of new trial motions. There is an appeal from the judgment of the Railway Tribunal on the question of the "singling" of the line between Fiddown and Waterford, and one in the case of Metcalfe and others against the Great Southern Railways Company in regard to superannuation allowances. An appeal which will doubtless be of more than ordinary interest to Dublin people is that in connection with the omnibus which was burned in the Coombe, and frequently has been referred to as "The Burning 'Bus Case."

Besides a number of part-heard and adjourned cases, there are about ten cases for hearing before Mr. Justice Meredith, including an action by members of the Civic Guard against the Attorney-General, claiming a declaration that they are entitled to certain scales of salary not less than those upon which they were respectively employed before the date of their transfer from the British Government to the Irish Free State Government, and a settlement of their future pensions.

The Minister for Finance has an action against the Glendalough Mines, Ltd., claiming a declaration that a sum of £2,500 may be well charged on the defendants' interest in all the metals and ores in the mines of Glendalough and Shangan, County Wicklow; and the Irish Ochre and Minerals Co., Ltd., have an action against the Wicklow Ochre and Minerals Grinding Co., Ltd., claiming an injunction to restrain them from selling or disposing of any machinery or plant comprised in an indenture of demise of the 28th April, 1927.

In the High Court also there are interesting "cases stated" to be dealt with, and a substantial list of appeals from Circuit Courts.

Six applications for leave to appeal are to be heard in the Court of Criminal Appeal.

THE JURY CASES.

There are twenty-seven jury cases, most of them "running down" actions, and fourteen non-jury cases. One of the cases is for alleged breach of promise of marriage, and one is against a chemist, brought by a woman, who alleges that he supplied her with a hair lotion which was a noxious drug.

The trial of jury actions will begin next Monday.

Holding that there was not sufficient evidence to prove drunkenness, District Justice Reddin, at Kilmainham yesterday, dismissed a charge of being drunk at the wheel, preferred against a lorry driver, John Young, Townsend street, Dublin, who had run into a cyclist when driving at Newlands on the 27th May ult. On a further charge of reckless driving he convicted, fined the defendant £5, and ordered the licence to be endorsed and suspended for fourteen days.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

COLONEL'S HOUSE ROBBED.

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN.)

Patrick Fitzgerald (42), of no business and no fixed address, was returned for trial on a charge of having stolen clothing, valuables and liquor, of a total value of about £70, from the residence of Colonel James O'Dowd Egan, Merrion avenue, Booterstown, between January and March last.

Guard 147 B gave evidence of searching a room in the lodging-house where the defendant stayed, and detailed the property found there. This ranged from a bracelet to a bottle of whiskey and an imitation leather-covered book, entitled "A Pleasant Surprise," which, the Guard explained, was really a flask such as bootleggers would use. The Guard gave further evidence of finding a number of the missing articles in some of the city pawn offices

Mr. Cussen, looking at some of the articles, remarked that they were perfectly new and unused, and that it seemed curious that they should have been accepted by city pawnbrokers without any question. He asked the Guard to give the names and addresses of the pawnbrokers involved.

Colonel Egan, called to give evidence, said that he had been away on holidays. When he returned on the 25th of April last he found that a window had been forced and some of the doors battered. He estimated that it would take about £3 to repair the damage.

STATISTICS ACT PROSECUTION.

(BEFORE MR. O'SULLIVAN.)

The Ministry for Industry and Commerce summoned James Fitzgerald, 190 Pearse street, for failing to return statistics relating to motor passenger services contrary to the provisions of the Statistics Act, 1926.

Mr. D. O'Flaherty (Chief State Solicitor's Office) represented the Minister, and said that the fault they found with defendant was that he did not return the forms for the months of February, March and April. The Minister regarded the matter as a very serious offence. Fitzgerald had been given every opportunity to comply with the Act, having been forwarded the necessary forms and communicated with officially several times.

Mr. O'Shea, an official of the department, stated the forms were not returned or the necessary information supplied. A registered letter had been sent defendant that if he did not return the forms he would be prosecuted, but he took no notice of the matter.

Defendant admitted the charge, but pleaded that he was ill at the time.

Mr. O'Flaherty—I have instructions to press for a penalty, which is £20 for the three months, at the discretion of his worship.

Mr. O'Sullivan—I will give him the benefit of the Probation Act; give him 14 days to fill in the forms and pay £2 to the Ministry. Should he not do so he will be fined £20

AUSTRALIAN WOOL SALES.

At yesterday's wool sale, at Sydney, the offerings totalled 10,459 bales, of which 8,417 were sold. Wool sold privately consisted of 601 bales. There was an average selected. Good and general competition was encountered by all the better descriptions of fleece, wool and skirtings, while the market was irregular and slightly lower for irregular fleece and unskirted wools. Continental and Japanese buyers were the chief operators, with some support from Yorkshire and America. Greasy merinos fetched up to 19d., comebacks 14d., and cross-breds 12¾d.

GEELONG, Wednesday.

At the wool sales held here to-day 6,400 bales were offered. Competition was keen, there being a general demand for attractive, well-grown wools. Japan and the Continent were the chief buyers, and Yorkshire gave keen support, while the American market was very firm at ruling rates.

THE IRISH GIRL DRAGOON.

CHRISTIAN CAVENAUGH.

ONE OF THE SCOTS GREYS.

(By J. M. SEMPLE)

Of all the hardy eighteenth-century women who enlisted as men in the original rough-and-ready British Army, none had so strange a history as the Irish maid who rode in the ranks of the Scots Greys (the 6th Inniskilling Dragoons' historic comrades) for eight years and was thrice wounded. This dauntless damsel, Christian Cavenaugh, was born in Dublin in 1667, the daughter of a brewer who had a farm at Leixlip. At the age of seventeen, she lived in her aunt's tavern in Dublin. Four years later, having become landlady, she married Welsh, the waiter of her inn. Then her father raised a troop of horse to fight for King James at the Boyne, and was slain at Aughrim.

When he had been married four years, Welsh disappeared, and next year wrote to his wife that he had been forced to join the Army in the Netherlands. Leaving her children to the care of friends, their mother dressed in a man's clothes and travelled to the Low Countries in a desperate search for her husband. In 1693 she enlisted as Private Welsh in Captain Tichborne's Company of Foot, and in the next summer she was wounded in a skirmish at Landen, being captured but soon exchanged.

THE ROYAL SCOTS DRAGOONS.

Having the Irish love for fighting with a horse betwixt the legs, Christian (then twenty-seven years old) requested to be enrolled in the Royal Regiment of Scots Dragoons, which was in the Stuart Scottish Army for thirty years until 1707. She served in "The Greys" for three years, being discharged at the peace of 1697, and returned to Dublin incognito for four years.

Back in Flanders when war broke out again, this soldier-lass re-enlisted in the Scottish Dragoons in 1701. In 1702-3 she fought in four battles in the "Lowlands of Holland and High Germany." The small face of the young Irish Trooper Welsh looked so forlorn among her harsh-featured Northern comrades that she was jauntily nick-named the Colonel's "Pretty Dragoon." She had a passionate nature, however, and was once badly wounded in a duel with a sergeant. She could also be as savage and wanton as any battle-drunk trooper of that period.

In the Army of "Red Marlborough"—"Corporal John"—the chaplains prayed in front of their regiments before battle, and his captains exchanged chivalrous salutes with the enemy before fighting them. The Dragoons (then a sort of mounted infantry) were gay, rough riders, with long hair and legs, and a swaggering, jingling stride. They may have remembered their native fields, while smoking their clay tobacco pipes, lying under the rain, slaving in stables or on lonely vidette duty. But all was forgotten when galloping, reckless of a fall, with mad shouts, slashing blades and bloody spurs, astride of lathered bucketing horses, in a thundering "hell-for-leather" cavalry charge.

"The Greys'" accoutrements then comprised a swinging broadsword and a carbine, buff cross-belts and pouch, laced cocked hat with cockade, cravat and gauntlets, long-skirted red coat with heavy cuffs and aiguillettes, and blue breeches hidden in jack-boots with high heels, on which were buckled spurs with barbarous rowels. The stout grey chargers carried, beside saddle and bridle, a brace of horse-pistols in holsters and a rolled cloak, to front and rear of the stirrups.

"BOOT AND SADDLE."

In 1704, at Schellenberg, where both squadrons of "The Greys" fought on foot—dashing through the dust with drawn sword in hand, led by the cornet bearing the standard, to the boom of kettledrums and the clang of trumpets—the "pretty dragoon" was shot in the leg, and fell, with a ball in her hip which was never extracted. After a month in hospital, she was on horseback in time to share in the plunder after the "famous victory" of Blenheim in Bavaria. Escorting French prisoners after Blenheim, she formed one of the guard, with the piper and survivors of Orkney's 1st Royal Scots Regiment—among whom she saw her husband after twelve years. She made herself known to him, but made him promise to pose as her brother, being so fond of the life of the camp that she could not bear to leave it.

In 1706, at the Battle of Ramillies in Belgium, the Royal Irish Dragoons (5th Lancers) and the Scots Greys spurred furiously through a marsh, drove the French cavalry in confusion to the end of Antreglise village, captured three battalions of the King's Picardy Grenadiers with that ancient regiment's colours, and won their blue mitre cap. Christian went unhurt through the hottest of that fight, until a shell from a steeple burst behind her, striking her head and cracking her skull, and her lashing horse flung her to the earth.

She was carried to the hospital at Meldre and, after a surgeon's operation, was cured in ten weeks, but her sex was discovered. On hearing the news, her colonel, Lord John Hay, came to see her, and, being told their story by her husband, continued her pay; and her comrades also visited her. She was presented with a handsome silk gown by Brigadier Preston, linen from the colonel, and costumes from her troop captain and all the officers, to replace her campaign battered regimentals. Then aged thirty-nine, she became the regimental sutler, and, in obtaining information, was captured, but released.

For three years, on a pack-horse, she marched with her husband in Flanders until, after Oudenarde, he was killed at Malplaquet. She found his corpse on the battlefield, and her wild weeping excited the pity of one Captain Ross so much that she was called "Mother Ross." In her sorrow no food crossed her lips for a week; but—army fashion—in three months she wedded Grenadier Jones, who died at the Siege of Venant in the next year.

THE MUNSTER YEOMANRY.

In 1712 she came home from the wars, and the Duke of Argyll presented her to Queen Anne, who granted her a pension of a shilling daily. She returned to Dublin to find her inn and friends gone. She then married a third soldier named Davies, and for twenty-five years suffered from much sickness and poverty. At last she got Davies admitted to Chelsea Hospital, but two years later, watching by his sick bed, she caught a cold and died. At her own request her body was buried in the veterans' graveyard with military honours, three grand volleys being fired over the remains of that gallant Irishwoman Dragoon.

On the Flanders fields that knew the old Irish Dragoons, the heaviest cavalry losses in the Great War were borne by the South Irish Horse. Originally the Marquis of Waterford's South of Ireland Imperial Yeomanry, they wore a green and red uniform with a shamrock helmet badge. The regimental headquarters were at the Ordnance Barrack in Limerick, where there was a memorial to the 8th (King's Royal Irish) Hussars [illegible] charge of 600. From the squadron that landed in France in 1914 [illegible] to the remnant left in 1918, fought 2,500 S.I.H. Yeomen, of whom almost 400 were killed, and many of the rest were wounded. In 1922 the South Irish Horse Yeomanry was disbanded after one score years' service—leaving their standard in Windsor Castle, with monuments in Dublin, Westminster, and Ypres churches.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Malta.

An Absent-minded Actor.

The following story is told of Harry Webb, the comedian who was at one time lessee of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin. Webb was producing "Macbeth" at the Queen's, with special scenic effects. In the third scene the exit of the three witches was concealed by a screen of clouds, and, Webb, who himself played the part of a witch, went round to the front to observe the effect produced. Seeing only two witches, "in thunder, lightning and in rain," he rushed behind the scenes and roared at the prompter: "Where's the other witch? Fine him, sir, fine him a week's salary." "Please, sir," ventured the prompter, "it's yourself that's missed the scene." "Bless me," exclaimed Webb, "so it was. Here, give me a cloak, I'll go on in the next scene; and fine yourself, Jenkins; fine yourself five shillings for letting me neglect my business."

The Bennett Way.

From his earliest years Mr. Arnold Bennett has informed the world—the part of the world that reads his writings—that he has kept a diary, and extracts from that diary have been published from time to time under the title "Things That Have Interested Me." In the title of his latest volume of extracts he has so far departed from his series as to label it merely "Journal, 1929." The book was published by Messrs. Cassells last week, and its contents prove that "all things, great and small," still interest the inquisitive mind of Mr. Arnold Bennett.

Everything, from cocktails to hand-made shoes, from de luxe trains to the difficulty of procuring properly-cut dress waistcoats, has its place; and about everything Mr. Bennett has something interesting to say. Perhaps, the item that will attract the greatest interest is that in which he announces that he is at work on a new novel. Under date September 25th he enters the item "To-day I began a long novel. At 3.30 p.m. . . . I have not written a long novel for years. As a man with a secret tendency towards idleness I prefer to write a short novel. It is easier."

MR. A. BENNETT.

As a sidelight upon Mr. Bennett's method of working, his information about this forthcoming novel will be of value. "I reckon this novel will fill 900 pages of manuscript. How do I reckon? I don't reckon. I just know. Experience has taught me pre-knowledge. When I began 'The Old Wives' Tale' I announced to the domestic hearth: 'This novel will be 200,000 words long, divided into four equal parts.' Well, it was. The new novel will be 150,000 words long, and probably not divided into parts. I think I have now grown out of dividing novels into parts. To-day such a division strikes me as being a bit pompous. I know the main plot, but by no means all the incidents thereof, though I have a few tit-bits of episodes which I shall not omit." It will be an unusually interesting novel, even from Mr. Arnold Bennett, because it will deal with that "very serious organisation," the big hotel de luxe. It may be expected next year.

Crabs and their Habits.

While bathing at Shankill a few days ago (writes a correspondent) I had to wade a considerable distance to reach deep water. Returning after a swim, and finding the bottom rather uneven, I was keeping a look-out for flat stones to walk on, when one that seemed particularly suitable caught my eye. I was about to put my foot on it when it moved away sideways. Needless to say, I choose my steps with even more deliberation for the rest of the way. Once a crab secures a good grip it is very difficult to make him let go, and even if he gets a limb torn off in the process, he will accept the loss philosophically and proceed to grow another one. Lobsters seem to frequent the same places, living in holes in the rocks, but crabs are great wanderers. A few years ago some naturalists fitted a considerable number with metal tallies and placed them in the sea at Scarborough. Some of these crabs were found afterwards at places 40 and 50 miles away, and one determined adventurer crawled and floated to Aberdeen.

Banagher Sand.

The Banagher glen lies about four miles from Dungiven, in the County of Londonderry, and the parish boasts of a pretty waterfall and a wonderful sand. There is a widespread belief that this sand, if thrown by one man at his opponent in a law suit, will cause the latter to lose. But in order to produce the desired result it must be thrown "above the breath," which presumably means in the eyes of the person over whom it is hoped to gain an advantage. A grain thrown over a horse in a race will make him win; it is also carried in a small bag by sailors and fishermen to save them from drowning. But it must be supplied by one particular family; otherwise it possesses no magical qualities.

Motoring Crimes.

Deplorable evidence of the extent to which the rubber-tyred vehicle has captured "the rolling English road" is supplied by the most recent official returns which deal with legal offences committed by the British motorists during last year. The mere figure which shows that British policemen succeeded in obtaining over 188,000 convictions against members of the motoring fraternity is in itself a somewhat staggering revelation. But one is relieved to find that no less than 44,000 of these convictions were for "lighting" offences, and that a large proportion of other successful prosecutions were for comparatively harmless breaches of licences regulations. But it is startling to know that no less than 58 persons were committed on charges of manslaughter, 32 for causing grievous bodily harm, and over 1,200 transgressors had been found to be drunk while in charge of a vehicle; and still more disquieting is the fact that 18,000 convictions were for "dangerous or negligent driving."

With such figures before us the present rapid growth of motor transport in Ireland surely should stimulate the Minister for Local Government, or whoever is responsible for the regulation of road traffic, to hasten forward the motoring legislation which has been so long promised for the Free State.

Corpus Christi.

Corpus Christi, designed to commemorate the institution of the Eucharist, is a great day for religious processions in most Roman Catholic countries, and used to be a favourite occasion for festivities of a more secular character. For centuries it was the great day of the year for tanners and skin-dressers, who celebrated it with processions "bearing candles of wax, costly garnished, burning bright, through streets strewn with flowers"; and in mediæval times it was a recognised day for fairs and pageants, including the presentation of miracle plays by the trade guilds. An old custom that still persists in some parts of Great Britain, as well as on the Continent, is that of strewing green herbs and flowers before the doors of the houses on Corpus Christi eve.

A Question of Density.

There is nothing more irritating, I am told, to the enthusiastic amateur gardener than the casual acquaintance who looks over the wall and makes vacuous comments or suggestions. A friend of mine, who has a certain vein of irony, scored over one of these gentry the other day rather neatly. While engaged in weeding a particularly bad patch, a young man in immaculate tennis costume leaned over the wall and remarked to him: "Don't you find it much harder when the weeds are so thick?" "Not at all, quite the contrary, I assure you," retorted my friend. "You see, you don't have to walk so far to the next weed."

Mid June.

Mid June brings an anxious period for the people of Egypt, who are now looking for the first indications of the annual flooding of the Nile, upon which the fertility of their land so largely depends. The amount of the annual rise of the river has been recorded every year since 3600 B.C., and is still registered by the Nilometer constructed by the Khalif Mutawakhul ten centuries ago on the Island of Roda, opposite Cairo. A square well, with a marble pillar in the centre, is connected with the river by a canal. As the water rises the cubit marks on the pillar are submerged one by one, anything above 18 cubits indicating a fair harvest in prospect, while a rise above 24 cubits threaten devastation. In recent years, of course, anxiety has been mitigated by the great Assouan Dam, by which the flow of the flood water can be regulated; but great crowds still watch the Roda indicator, just as their forbears have done for a millennium.

Busy Robins.

In my garden (writes a correspondent) there are two really very busy robins. They set up housekeeping in an ivy-clad summerhouse in the spring. They were then fine fat, merry little birds. They enjoyed every moment of nest-building, and while the eggs were a-hatching, Mr. Robin Redbreast was a most attentive spouse. Now, however, there are four fledglings in the home, and from early morn to late at night the unfortunate parents spend all their time flying to and from the nest with nice green, juicy caterpillars parked in their bills. The menu is occasionally varied with a slug, but at the moment the diet is composed mainly of caterpillars, which thought they would have a gay old time chopping up my cabbages. However, thanks to the voracity of the young Robin family, this menace is now happily averted, and only a few of the outer leaves are perforated. Meanwhile, the old birds are so unselfish that they are thinking less of themselves and more of their family. They are quite thin and bedraggled-looking. But when their family is fully fledged they will be able to take things quietly and gobble their own worms and other dainties without first satisfying the constant cheep-cheep of their cheeky youngsters.

A Remarkable Inquest.

It was Edward the First who granted power to the coroner to inquire into all those cases of death in which there was the slightest suspicion of foul play.

In the year 1901 an action was brought against the L.N.W. Railway for damages, because of the mishandling and almost complete destruction of a Peruvian mummy on its journey from South America. The lawyers, it appears, could do nothing in the case until a coroner's inquest had been held over this body, dead for some thousands of years. The inquest took place and the verdict was as follows: "That the woman was found dead at the railway goods station on April the fifteenth, and did die at some date unknown in some foreign country, probably South America. The body has been dried and buried in some foreign manner, and the jurors are satisfied that it does not show any recent crime in this country, and that the deceased was unknown and about twenty-five years of age."

The Maltese Problem.

The trouble in Malta, with the consequent discussions in London, brings Lord Passfield into violent controversies once again. Even in his most busy periods as Mr. Sidney Webb, the Secretary of State for the Colonies did not figure prominently in violent controversy; he always chose the more difficult method of persuasion and conviction. In the larger sphere of British tactics Fabianism has achieved success, and probably it will be at least equally successful in the present Maltese dispute.

About the time that the Labour Government was formed last year it was freely rumoured that Lord Passfield was about to retire from active politics and to undertake a world tour, and it came as a surprise when he assumed the onerous dual office of Secretary of State for the Dominions and of the Colonies. Now that he has been relieved of the more spectacular, but less arduous, of these offices, he is immediately confronted with a problem which is likely to be much discussed in Parliament, and will certainly excite much interest in Continental capitals. So Lord Passfield is unlikely to retire for some little while longer.

LORD PASSFIELD.

Trotsky has some piquant things to say about Lord Passfield and Mrs. Sidney Webb in his recently-published memoirs. Of course, to the Communist a Socialist like Lord Passfield will appear more dangerous than ever he did to the die-hard anti-Socialists in England; to Trotsky, indeed, Lord Passfield is not even "pink." Now in his seventieth year, and with a lifetime of very successful public service, Lord Passfield and his wife have earned the right to some leisure. Until Malta is appeased, however, they are unlikely to have their desire for a leisurely world tour gratified.

Tea versus Coffee.

Your question as to why women prefer tea to coffee suggests to me, writes a correspondent, a different answer. Women are shrewder judges than men in these matters, and while they can be pretty sure of getting palatable tea when they order it, they are well aware that the same cannot be said of coffee. There are two reasons for this state of affairs; the first is, that people in these countries, as a general rule, do not know how to prepare coffee, and the second, that what is sold as coffee is usually either nothing of the kind, or coffee mixed with some substitute. Chicory, or succory, is the most common adulterant, but dandelion root, carrots, the seeds of asparagus and the yellow iris are frequently used. French coffee often consists of the seeds of Astragalus Boeticus mixed with caramel, which is said to be the best substitute for real coffee. But all these imitations lack caffeine, which is the essential ingredient.

The Norwegian Method.

Good coffee is a most valuable and harmless stimulant, and it may be of interest to describe the Norwegian method of preparing it, which is said to be the best in the world. The beans are first roasted to a dark brown colour in an instrument like a closed frying-pan, and a very small quantity of butter is added during the process. The pan is continually shaken while the coffee is being roasted. Afterwards the beans are boiled, and the liquor taken off through a strainer, but the modern percolator is an improvement on this device. The important part of the process, however, is the roasting; if the beans are under-roasted or over-roasted, the result will not be satisfactory. People who buy coffee beans already roasted should remember that they are frequently under-roasted by the retailer to escape loss of weight.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

CHANGES IN DRAFT STATIONS.

The Conference of the Methodist Church in Ireland resumed its ministerial session in the Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Lofthouse (President of the British Conference) occupying the chair.

The Secretary of the Conference (the Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D.) intimated that Mr. J. Arthur Rank, D.L., of London, having met with a slight accident, it would be impossible for him to fulfil his engagement, and on the President's invitation Mr. R. Parkinson Tomlinson, of Poulton-le-Field, Lancashire, had kindly consented to take Mr. Rank's place.

BISHOP WELCOMED.

The Conference extended a cordial welcome to Bishop Hughes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America.

The Secretary also announced that the Right Rev. J. D. Morrow, M.A., D.D., and the Right Rev. R. K. Hanna, M.A., had been appointed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church to convey its greetings to the Conference.

It was decided to receive the deputation on next Monday at 12.30 p.m.

The report of the Allocation Committee, which had met on the previous evening, presided over by the Rev. James M. Alley, recommended that Messrs. J. B. A. Booth, R. Forshaw, W. S. Johnston, and R. E. Kerr, B.A., should return to Edgehill College for a third year.

The pastoral address to the members of the Methodist Church in Ireland, which had been prepared by the Rev. H. M. Watson, M.A., and the Rev. John E. Neill, B.A., was read and accepted by the Conference.

The Rev. R. Wesley Oliver, of Larne, was appointed Secretary to the Bureau of Membership, in succession to the Rev. R. Moore, B.A., who desired to relinquish the office.

NEW MINISTERS.

The ten ministers who had been reported on the previous day as having completed their probation were presented to the Conference, and were received into full connexion by a standing vote, the solemn proceedings concluding with prayer.

THE PROBLEM OF YOUTH.

The Pastoral Efficiency Session was entered upon at noon, and the Rev. John England (Kingstown) was called upon to introduce the subject of the Church's response to the problems of youth.

Mr. England confined his remarks to the ethical problem of youth. They lived in a time of change, but, he said, it should not be forgotten that ethics did not change, and, therefore, the standards of other days had not lost their value.

The Rev. W. G. Lee followed, and addressed the Conference more particularly on the spiritual problems of youth. The spirit of questioning which prevailed they welcomed with some respect, but it made ineffective many of the religious appeals of bygone days. There was scant sympathy for theology or dogma among the young men and women of the present generation, but it was most gratifying to find that there was no antagonism to the Central Figure of the Gospels and the uniqueness of Jesus Christ.

The Rev. A. E. Whitham (Edinburgh) said that in his ministry he found most problems centred around those who had gone on in years. He believed that theology was not a dead science.

METHODISTS AND MASONRY.

The opportunity given by the meeting of the Conference in Dublin this year was taken advantage of by the Methodists of Dublin who are members of the Masonic Order to invite the clerical and lay members of the Conference who are also members of the Order to a reception which they gave in the Molesworth Hall yesterday afternoon.

The function was held under the auspices of Lodge of Fidelity, No. 125, and for the special occasion all the offices in the Lodge were filled by Methodist Brethren of the Dublin Lodges.

The Worshipful Master of the Lodge, who is an active member of the Methodist Church in Dublin, extended to the visiting brethren a very hearty welcome, and it was acknowledged by the Provincial Grand Secretary for Munster on behalf of the lay brethren, and by the Rev. W. J. Robinson on behalf of the ministerial brethren.

THE OPEN SESSION.

PRESIDENT AND RE-UNION OF CHURCHES.

The open session of the Conference was held in the evening in the Centenary Church.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The Rev. William F. Lofthouse, M.A., D.D., President of the British Conference, having been welcomed by the Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D. (Secretary), on behalf of the Representative Conference, thanked them for the very warm terms in which the welcome had been expressed on that and on a previous occasion.

They would expect from him a message from Methodism on the other side of the water. During the ten months of his presidential year what had impressed him most was the interest and enthusiasm which had been aroused by Methodist Union in England. With the utmost patience and perseverance for many years they strove for re-union, and now they were to have the first uniting Conference in 1932, and the united Conference for the first time in 1933. (Applause.)

UNION OF CHURCHES.

He could not help reflecting that their British movement towards union was only one aspect of a much wider movement towards union among the Churches in many parts of the world.

When he was in Scotland he found that the zeal for reunion was a new spirit, a great enthusiasm for winning Scotland for the Church. Precisely the same thing may be said with regard to the daring scheme between the Anglican, the Methodist, and the other Churches in South India.

THE TIDE OF MATERIALISM.

When he spoke of those significant movements towards union, towards a linking up, it seemed to him that, if they were to do their own work properly and well, they must do it together. To-day they were faced all over the world with a great tide of materialism, and a turning away quite definitely from the spiritual view, to materialism. A tide of materialism was sweeping over the world. Not only was this a tide of materialism, but it was a definite revolt from the spiritual to the rational.

Mr. Parkinson Tomlinson (Lancashire) said that they in England highly valued the work that Irish Methodists were doing, and he wished them God-speed. The less they discussed the things on which they did not agree, and the more they talked about those things on which they did agree the better it would be for Christianity.

GREETINGS FROM AMERICA.

Bishop Hughes, of the Episcopal Methodist Church of the United States of America, on behalf of the twenty thousand ministers and five millions of Methodists, brought greetings to the Irish conference, and told the conference how much American Methodism owed [illegible] behind it a deep, fine religious spirit in the United States of America.

Their figures of wealth were mounting—mounting in such a singular way that their leaders of the deeper and more spiritual sort were uneasy.

THE VALUE OF PROHIBITION.

Concluding, he said that notwithstanding what one read in some of the papers, prohibition was a good thing for America, and if it was attempted to bring back the saloons the American Episcopal Church would again stand up and help drive them from the land. (Applause.)

THE CANADIAN CHURCH.

The Rev. Dr. James Smyth (Canadian United Church) gave an account of how the new Canadian Church was progressing.

On the motion of the Rev. John C. Robertson, M.A., B.D., Vice-President, seconded by the Rev. F. E. Hart, and supported by Mr. W. P. Musgrave, the reply of the British Conference was accepted.

The Conference was also addressed by the Rev. J. R. Irvine (Chairman of the Liverpool District) and the Rev. A. E. Witham.

The Conference adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE AGENDA.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, in the House of Commons yesterday, informed Sir Nicholas Grattan Doyle that the agenda of the Imperial Conference was under discussion with the Governments concerned.

Mr. Fenner Brockway asked whether the Government proposed to include in the agenda the subject of the bulk purchase of [illegible] Labour back benches.

Mr. Thomas said that he hoped that the agenda would include everything that would be of advantage to the Empire.

YESTERDAY IN DAIL EIREANN.

HOUSE RISES FOR TWENTY-TWO WEEKS.

ANGRY SCENES ON MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

ECHOES OF THE BY-ELECTION AND THE CIVIL WAR.

On the motion of President Cosgrave, Dail Eireann adjourned last night until November 19th next.

Angry scenes occurred on the motion for the adjournment arising out of references to the recent by-election and the civil war.

The successful Fianna Fail candidate for Longford-Westmeath, Mr Geoghegan, K.C., took his seat.

PROTECTION OF IRISH FISHERMEN.

GOVERNMENT AND LOUGH FOYLE DISPUTE.

President COSGRAVE moved that the House adjourn until November 19th next.

Mr. DERRIG (Fianna Fail, Carlow-Kilkenny) called attention to what he described as the unsatisfactory condition of the sea-fishing industry. Last year the Minister for Fisheries informed the Dail that he had in preparation a scheme for setting up a Sea-Fisheries Co-Operative Association. They discovered three months ago in the estimates that the scheme had not materialised. The total sum that had been allocated for the development of sea-fisheries was only £5,000, which was a smaller sum than that for the previous year, and it was obvious that no proper steps had been taken to set up an organisation

Day after day the Press gave accounts of poaching trawlers coming into Irish waters, and the Minister apparently did not know what his position was in regard to the territorial limits, or to the provision of adequate protection for the fisheries, although all parties had urged on the Minister the necessity of increasing the amount for fishery protection. What was the position in regard to British trawlers coming in to fish in Irish waters? It would be interesting to know what amount had been collected in fines as the result of the work of the Muirchu. How long was the present position in regard to Lough Foyle going to continue?

Mr. GOULDING (Fianna Fail, Waterford) said that if the activities of the French trawlers were allowed to continue a very serious state of affairs was likely to arise.

IRISH FISHERMEN VANISHING.

Mr. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) said that if the emigration of the young fishermen from the coast continued, the fishing industry would be lost. In Arklow, which was famous for its fishing, there were scarcely any young men in the industry now.

Dr. RYAN (F.F., Wexford) said that he had complaints again and again from fishermen on the coast of Wexford about the inaction and inefficiency of the Fisheries Department. They complained bitterly of the raids that French fishermen were making upon their territory, and said that the protection of the Irish fisheries was absolutely ridiculous.

Mr. McDONAGH (Govt., Donegal) said that he was reluctant to speak at all on the matter because he was a member of the Committee of the Sea Fisheries Co-operative Association. They would have to go very cautiously and very carefully or they might lose a great deal of money. Fifty vessels would not protect the fisheries from the trawlers on dark and stormy nights, and the suggestion of using a seaplane to protect the fisheries was ridiculous. The deputies opposite (Fianna Fail) spoke of things they knew nothing about. They had one eye on the reporters' gallery and the other on the ballot boxes. (Laughter.)

Mr. CORRY (F.F., Cork, E.)—A very good idea, too. (Laughter.)

LACK OF PUBLIC SPIRIT.

Mr. WHITE (Farmers', Donegal) complained of the destruction which the trawlers were causing off the Donegal coast, and said that there were local men members of the crews of these trawlers who were piloting the vessels and showing where the fish could be got. When these men came ashore the local people fratnerised with them, so low was the public spirit amongst the people.

Mr. LYNCH, Minister for Fisheries, replying, said that the directors of the Sea Fisheries Co-operative Association had met, and the rules had been submitted to the Registrar of Friendly Societies, who had given provisional assent to them. They had not yet been submitted to the Department for formal approval, but, as the directors were meeting on the following day, he thought the matter would not be longer delayed. Legislation was not required to enable the work of the Association to be continued. The money provided in the estimates would enable them to carry on until the Dail met again, when there would be a supplementary estimate for the Association, and the rules would be tabled with the supplementary estimate.

QUESTION RAISED AT THE HAGUE.

A great deal had been said about the damage caused by encroaching trawlers, and French boats that stole lobster pots. The latter boats had operated near the rocks and shores, and were being constantly fined. Besides, there existed the right to seize their tackle. The position of the by-laws regarding extra-territoriality was not quite clear at the moment, and they could not say whether they were enforceable or not. The question had been raised at The Hague, and certain questions had been sent to the Attorney-General for his advice.

In regard to the position in Lough Foyle, one of the deputies said something about forcing the Irish Society to take action in the Saorstat Courts. He (the Minister) would like to know how the Irish Society could be forced to do so. The deputy had mentioned Lough Erne as a similar case.

THE LOUGH ERNE CASE.

What happened in the Lough Erne case was much the same as what occurred in the Lough Foyle case in the initial stages. The Lough Erne Company prosecuted certain fishermen. The District Justice held that the question of title arose in the case, and decided that he had no jurisdiction. Then the Lough Erne Fishery Co. sought by mandamus to force the District Justice to uphold them, but the District Justice's decision was upheld on the question of title.

The difference in the Lough Foyle case was that after the District Justice held that he had no jurisdiction the Irish Society did not seek a mandamus like the Erne Co. He did not see how they could force them to proceed further. The Attorney-General only came in in the Erne case, when the Erne Fishery Co. took the case further.

LOUGH FOYLE.

There was no use of restating the case of the Lough Foyle fishermen. If they had a right he would welcome its establishment. The fishermen had, in fact, only started to exercise a right since about 1922. The Government had made representations that the Irish Society should proceed in the Saorstat Courts. The Irish Society could seek an injunction, and if a prima facie case was established, he had no doubt they could be successful.

Mr. LYNCH, in reply, said that he believed the measures taken to protect the fisheries were fairly effective. Any measures that might be taken could not entirely stop poaching by foreigners, any more than the employment of bailiffs by Boards of Conservators along every yard of river would prevent poaching.

ECHOES OF THE BY-ELECTION.

Mr. DE VALERA called attention to the delay in coming to a decision on the application for a tariff on motor bodies, and said that the Government in adjourning the Dail for five months showed a want of consideration for this important industry, which was on its last legs.

Mr. BLYTHE said that the report on coach-building was nearly ready, and when it was presented it would be considered by the Executive Council. If the report was on lines that would require and permit of immediate action the Executive Council could arrange to have a meeting of the Dail for its consideration. He expected that certain amendments would be made to the proposals before the Senate, and that it would be necessary to summon the Dail to consider them. The report of the Commission should be positive and unanimous before the Executive Council would decide to take action.

Mr. de VALERA said that he was not satisfied with the Minister's statement and that he would vote against the adjournment.

Mr. ALLEN (F.F., Wexford) said that he saw members of the Civic Guards posting Cumann na nGaedheal notices on the barrack wall during the recent by-election, and he knew that voters were intimidated from going to the poll.

USE OF ARMS.

Mr. KENNEDY (F.F., Longford-Westmeath) complained about the use of arms during the recent election, especially at Street, and said that shots had been fired at a house by people in a car driven by one of the agents for the Government candidate.

Mr. LEMASS (F.F., Dublin S.) said that the Civic Guards were a force maintained by the people of the country, irrespective of party; and they should, as a force, be above party, and should exist for the purpose of maintaining law and order only. It appeared, however, that they had allowed themselves to be used as the appendage of a political party. They heard many statements about "gun bullies," but here they had definite evidence from deputies of "gun bullies," paid by this State out of the taxpayers' money, parading in public, with guns in their possession, firing shots and intimidating peaceful people in the exercise of the franchise. The Minister, he thought, was more responsible than any other individual in this country for any instability that might exist in the political life of the Free State at the moment, and he was more responsible than anyone else for whatever danger of violent action there might be in the future.

GUARDS IMPARTIAL.

Mr. GOREY (Govt., Carlow-Kilkenny) said that he was in Clonmellon from Wednesday to Sunday morning, and was not brought into contact with any Guard. The Guards were absolutely impartial. The statement was untrue that there was any interference by the Guards in the booths, but there were from fifteen to twenty fellows in the booths intimidating everyone there.

Mr. ANTHONY (Lab., Cork Boro') said that from his experience in Longford and Mullingar, he should say that the Guards carried out their duties in the ordinary way. He saw no interference with any party, and from his experience of general elections in Cork he never saw any interference with any party, and it was a good job they were outside the booths, because their presence prevented a good deal of personation.

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., Dublin, N.) referred to the cases of "political prisoners." Their offences, he said, had been committed at a time when regrettable things occurred, and when the country was not in a normal state and for which they were all sorry now. Things were done which Republicans, members of the I.R.A., honestly believed were right, because they were acting under the orders of their superior officers.

A good many years had passed now, and the time had come when these things should be forgotten, and the men who committed the crimes alleged against them should be released. He hoped that the Minister for Justice would be impartial, since he, unlike the Vice-President, Mr. Blythe, had not preached physical force. Mr. Blythe had preached that the young men should not stop until each had a gun and could shoot to kill. Those young men carried out that advice, and were doing long terms of imprisonment for it. That was not fair. The Minister for Finance ought to be the first to plead for them on account of his responsibility for their position. These young men were not criminals, but were placed in solitary confinement, and were sometimes forced to consort with criminals of the lowest type whose crimes could not be mentioned in that House.

WORK LEFT UNDONE.

A number of bills had been promised them. The Minister for Justice promised to introduce a Town Tenants Bill, a promise which he subsequently repudiated. There were other bills, such as a Clean Milk Bill, Fisheries Bill, Road Traffic Bill, Dublin Transport Bill, Insurance Bill, Merchandise Marks Bill, Workmen's Compensation, National Health, Amalgamation of Societies Bill, and other bills. That House was going to adjourn for twenty-two weeks after forty-eight days' work, and the State's urgent work remained unattended to.

Mr. BYRNE (Government, Dublin, N.) said that there was no truth in the statement that the Civic Guards supported the Government candidate, or that their speakers at the election meetings were accompanied by the Guards. His experience in the campaign was that gross intimidation had been practised by Fianna Fail. He was of opinion that the Minister should not entertain the question of an inquiry.

Mr. ESMONDE (Govt., Wexford) said that if the Minister granted the inquiry that was asked for he hoped that he would be permitted to give information which he had got since the recent election, to the effect that at least one member of the Fianna Fail Party had applied for the special protection of the Civic Guards.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY, Minister for Justice, said that, contrary to the allegation of Mr. O'Kelly, it was his intention to introduce a Town Tenants Bill, but he could not mention a specific date for that.

With reference to the case of a prisoner named Hogan, mentioned by Mr. O'Kelly, the crime for which he was sentenced to death was wilful murder. Mr. O'Kelly said that the time at which he committed the offence ought to be taken into consideration. There were other things to be taken into consideration, and he (the Minister) did not feel himself justified, while Hogan was in his present state of mind, in sending him back to his native place. As to the other man, Con Healy, he received a sentence of ten years' penal servitude for shooting at a Civic Guard with intent. Did the deputy think that was an innocent, moral act? Was Con Healy to be treated as a hero because he fired at a Civic Guard with intent? Did Mr. O'Kelly stand behind Con Healy for that act, and was that the explanations of their attitude towards the Civic Guards, and why their speeches were so full of bitterness and vindictiveness against the force?

EXCITED DEPUTIES.

Mr. BOLAND (F.F., Roscommon) and Mr. M. CORRY (F.F., Cork, E.) excitedly interrupted the Minister, saying that they knew Con Healy well, and that they would not stand his being called a criminal.

Mr. BOLAND said that if the Minister was a man he would not speak as he did of Con Healy, who was one of the best men in Ireland. The Minister, he said, was a Castle hack, and the man who sentenced Con Healy was also a Castle hack.

The SPEAKER called for order.

Mr. BOLAND—Human nature could not endure such insulting language as was used against the best man in Ireland by a Castle hack of the worst description, such as the Minister is.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY said that the attitude of the Chief Whip of the opposite party was that a person who shot at a Civic Guard with intent must be regarded as a hero. That threw a flood of light on the whole of the debate.

Continuing, the Minister said that there had been quotations from articles written by Mr. Blythe. Why did Mr. Blythe write them, and how many years ago? Did he write them at a time when the Irish people had appointed their own Government?

Mr. MacEOIN—Did they use the arms when they carried them?

Mr. LEMASS (heatedly)—You shot a prisoner, and the crime of murder is on your shoulders.

Mr O'CONNELL (Govt., Limerick), who was standing in the lobby leaning over the balustrade, shouted at Deputy Lemass, "Sit down."

Mr. LEMASS (angrily)—"I will not sit down for you."

Pointing to Deputy MacEoin, Mr. LEMASS shouted excitedly: "You shot an innocent prisoner behind prison bars yourself, and on your shoulders is the crime of murder."

Mr. CAREY (Govt., Cork Boro')—Document No. 2 is the cause of all that.

Mr. MacEOIN, pointing to Mr. Lemass, shouted "Never, never!"

Uproar ensued for a time, but,

The SPEAKER finally succeeded in making himself heard, and asked: "Are deputies prepared now to allow the Minister to go on?"

A CHALLENGE.

Mr. MacEOIN—I will ask Mr. Lemass to repeat the statement he made outside the House. We will then see whether his statement is right or not.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY (continuing) said that the only people entitled to carry arms in the country were the forces there to preserve order in the country. In his view it was a criminal thing for Deputy O'Kelly and other members of the Fianna Fail Party to urge as they did by their speeches that another class of young man could take up arms and use them against the existing State.

Mr. BRADY (F.F., Dublin Co.)—I never urged any such thing.

The SPEAKER—Let the Minister make his speech.

Mr. BRADY—He has no right to say I urged ——

The SPEAKER—Of course he has not, but the Minister must be allowed to make his speech.

The Minister went on to say that either these young men, carrying arms for the purpose of upsetting ordered conditions in the country, were right or wrong. Men in the Civic Guards who had done tremendously brave acts and risked their lives to save other lives got the Scott Medal, and it was not because they had bullied people that they were presented with medals.

MINISTER AND AN INQUIRY.

Mr. ALLEN (F.F., Wexford)—Are you prepared to hold an inquiry?

The MINISTER—I am not going to deal with these matters until I have an opportunity of hearing what the other side has to say. I am not going to deal with the matter on purely ex parte statements.

Mr. BOLAND (F.F., Roscommon) said that he apologised to the chair for the heat he had displayed, but when the Minister classed a friend of his (Mr. Boland's) as a dangerous criminal there was an excuse for heat.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY—On a point of order, is the deputy entitled to speak, especially when he is mis-stating the facts?

Mr. MacEOIN—A deputy of this House has been called a murderer by another deputy and there has been no effort or attempt on the part of that deputy who called that to withdraw or apologise. I must raise that matter later on.

Mr. BOLAND went on to say that Con Healy was a spirited man who fought all through the trouble, and when he was hunted down he undoubtedly carried a gun, but the proof that he was no criminal was the fact that he was sheltered by the people in the district—the most peaceful in Ireland. Healy believed that he was going to be killed himself, and, when chased, fired to defend himself. That was his defence, and he submitted that in this case there was a case for investigation into the position of Con Healy. No member of the Fianna Fail Party stood for murder or assassination.

The motion that the House adjourn until 19th November was then put, and was carried by 71 votes to 59.

THE COMMERCIAL REGISTER.

On the Committee stage of the Electoral (Dublin Commercial) Bill,

Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government, moved an amendment, which was carried by 62 votes to 56, fixing the 1st of July instead of the 15th of July, as named in the bill, as the date on which persons would be entitled to be placed on the register of commercial voters. This, he said, would give the Town Clerk more time to prepare the register before the election.

Standing Orders were suspended to enable the remaining stages to be taken, and the bill was passed by 66 votes to 57.

SCHOOL MEALS IN THE GAELTACHT.

On the Committee stage of the School Meals (Gaeltacht) Bill, 1930,

Mr. LYNCH, Minister for Lands and Fisheries, moved a money resolution in connection with the bill. The resolution stated that for the purpose of any Act to make provision for the supplying of meals to children attending National schools in the Gaeltacht it was expedient to authorise the payment out of moneys to be provided by the Oireachtas of "(1) whichever of the following sums is the less in any financial year:—(a) One-half of the expenses incurred by any Board of Health in providing meals under such Act; or (b) a sum which bears to the sum of £10,000 the same proportion as the number of children certified under such Act to have attended National schools in the scheduled area of such Board of Health during the prescribed period for any local financial year bears to the number of children certified under such Act to have attended National schools in the Gaeltacht during the same period: provided that in the local financial year ending 31st March, 1931, the sum of £5,000 shall be substituted for the sum of £10,000."

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. LAW (Govt., Donegal) moved an amendment in favour of inserting the following areas in County Donegal in the bill:—Creenasmear, Creeslough, Rosguil and Termon. He said the places named in his amendment were among the poorest in the county, and how they came to be left out passed his imagination.

Mr. LYNCH said that he was not prepared to add any further areas. The bill had been drawn with care and after full consideration and consultation with officials of wide experience. Three-fourths of the whole of County Donegal was embraced within the scope of the bill.

The amendment was withdrawn. The bill then passed its remaining stages, and was sent to the Senate.

CURRENCY BILL.

On the Committee stage of the Currency (Amendment) Bill,

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, said that he was quite satisfied that if the Currency Commission erred at all it would be on the side of caution. The constitution of the Commission was such that that would be the inevitable tendency. It would divide its investments with a full consideration of all elements of risk, and would also get the best revenue that it was reasonable for the Commission to aim at.

The Minister then moved an amendment providing for the investment of note reserve fund in "Securities of the Government of the United States, America." The amendment, he said, made the bill more logical, and the matter was a comparatively small one.

The amendment was passed, and the bill passed through its remaining stages.

CIVIL SERVICE PROMOTIONS.

On the second reading stage of the Appropriation Bill,

Mr. ANTHONY (Labour, Cork Boro') recalled that about twelve months ago he referred to the position occupied by typists and shorthand-typists in the Civil Service. He said that the promises then made by the Minister as to the promotion of these people to higher grades had not been fulfilled. Some time ago he urged the setting up of a commission to inquire into the conditions in the service; and for the good of the service and of the country it would be well if such an investigation were carried out. He suggested that the Civil Service Representative Council should be reconstituted to make it more representative; for at present to say that it was representative was a misnomer. Giving a preference to university graduates was like setting up a caste, and that was not creditable to the Government.

ROAD TRAFIC.

Mr. MURPHY (Ind., Dublin Co.) asked if it was the intention of the Government to introduce a bill dealing with the report of the Inter-Departmental Bill on Road Traffic. This bill had been promised them time and again, but nothing had been done. Meanwhile accidents were multiplying, and the 'buses seemed to be a law unto themselves.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, said that shorthand-typists were not entitled to promotion, but in the past there had been a certain number of promotions.

Mr. BYRNE (Govt., Dublin N.) protested against this treatment of shorthand-typists, while those of a lower branch, writing assistants, were entitled of right to promotion.

Mr. DAVIN (Labour, Leix-Offaly) urged the removal of the ban on promotions in the Civil Service. Referring to the Customs and Excise, he said that a number of individuals were taken into the service without any previous experience of the work.

Mr. BLYTHE, referring to the question of promotions from the clerical to the executive grade said that there were so many of the clerical grade promoted that no person in that grade had any real grievance. He hoped it would not be long before they were able to resume these promotions on a small scale. With regard to promotions into the clerical grade from writing assistants, they felt that the time had come to make some promotions, and in the last week or so about twelve promotions had been made. The competition for the writing assistants class had been extraordinarily keen, and they had got girls whose standard of education was much higher than was necessary for the work.

He was not so anxious to have large numbers promoted to the clerical grade at present, as the quality was rather below the standard, and it was preferred that it should be strengthened by the admission of candidates entering in the ordinary way—appropriate to the grade by examination.

The second reading was carried by 67 votes to 54. The remaining stages were passed without discussion.

The House adjourned at 10.30 p.m., until 19th November next.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL.

METHOD OF ASSESSING INCOME TAX.

Mr. DOYLE (Govt., Dublin S.) asked whether it was intended to provide any relief in cases where hardship had resulted from changing the basis of assessment of income tax from the average of the three preceding years to the actual profits of the last preceding year.

Mr. BLYTHE said that the question had been the subject of very careful consideration, and the scope of the relief which it was proposed to provide was defined in Clause 2 of this year's Finance Bill.

CHILDREN AND TRAFFIC DANGERS.

Mr. LYNCH, Minister for Lands and Fisheries (for the Minister of Education) informed Dr. WHITE (Govt., Waterford) that the matter of warning pupils in primary and secondary schools as to the dangers arising out of motor traffic, and giving instructions as to how to avoid such dangers, had already been receiving consideration in the Education Department, and it was proposed to issue a circular on the subject to managers and teachers of national schools at an early date. As regarded secondary schools, there did not appear to be the same need for giving instruction, in view of the age of the pupils and the fact that many of those schools were boarding schools. Arrangements would be made, however, to issue copies of the circular to the managers of the day secondary schools in the cities and larger towns.

SHOPS ACT OF 1912.

Mr. DOLAN, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Industry and Commerce, replying to a question by Mr. DOYLE (Govt., Dublin S.), said that representations had been made to him regarding the working of the Shops Act, 1912, and he had decided to refer the matter to a Departmental Committee for investigation and report.

ARMED ATTACK ON 'BUS.

NEW ROSS COURT SEQUEL.

At New Ross (Co. Wexford) on Tuesday, before District Justice Fahy, James Keily, William street, and Daniel McEvoy, Priory street, were charged in connection with an armed attack on an I.O.C. 'bus at Ballyann on June 3. There were a number of counts, including attempt to murder, possession of revolvers and ammunition without authority, intimidation and conspiracy. The two men also were charged with having had ammunition in their possession at their homes.

Mr. T. J. Kelly, State Solicitor, prosecuted, and Mr. J. R. Brennan, solicitor, defended Keily. McEvoy refused to recognise the Court.

Benjamin Boles and John Jenkins, driver and conductor of the 'bus, deposed to being "held up" by two masked and armed men, who fired shots into the 'bus, one of which grazed Boles's forehead.

Guards proved to finding twenty-three rounds of rifle ammunition in Keily's house and a number of shot-gun cartridges at McEvoy's, also a recent issue of a Republican paper containing an article headed: "The 'busmen's strike. Make their fight yours."

Mr. Brennan said that Keily was convicted four years ago of having ammunition and got three months. Keily was one of those who did not see eye to eye with the Government, but he had suffered for his belief. He had been interned for a year and a half. He now renounced that organisation, and would give an undertaking for the future.

The Justice condemned the attack on the 'bus as a murderous, blackguardly outrage, and congratulated Boles on his escape.

Mr. Brennan joined in the condemnation, and said that it was deplorable that in a civilised community a strike should give rise to such conduct.

The Justice said that Keily was entitled to hold his opinions, but he could not try to force them down other's throats with a revolver. He was satisfied with the evidence of identification against the accused men on the major charges, which he dismissed. He fined Keily £3 and bound him to the peace for having the ammunition in his house, and committed McEvoy in custody to the Circuit Court on the same charge.

Unemployment.

Last night in the House of Commons, Sir Austen Chamberlain, as a criticism of the Government's policy for unemployment, moved a reduction on a vote of £1,500,000 in Committee of Supply. His speech consisted of many gibes, most of them justified, at the Government's alleged efforts to remedy Britain's outstanding evil. The departure of Mr. Thomas overseas, the self-determined retreat of Sir Oswald Mosley to the back benches, and Mr. Lansbury's new rôle as an impresario of mixed bathing, all provided Sir Austen with rich material for his ready wit, but the real burden of his complaint rested on surer grounds. He referred to the proposals for a non-party conference which would deal with the unemployment question, and asked what its form, scope and direction would be. He saw little hope in the Prime Minister's utterances which seemed to him to suggest that a further list of palliatives, with their ultimate obligations, would be the conference's supreme achievement. Finally, Sir Austen raised the crucial point, when he stressed that which a government could do as opposed to that which a government could not do. While he admitted that many causes of the present troubles were of world-wide origin, he was insistent that every State had control over one market—its own. In foreign fields he was content to draw the attention of the House to the fact that it was the duty of Parliament to ensure that British goods should enjoy a chance abroad equal to that offered to foreigners in Britain. The prudence of his moderation was proved by a perfunctory protest from Sir Herbert Samuel, who declared that Britain shared in all the advantages given by other countries.

Sir Herbert Samuel's unfounded comment drew from Sir Austen Chamberlain a riposte to the effect that the voice of the middle of last century had spoken. Later, Mr. Lloyd George, with simple, if pathetic, loyalty to an outworn creed, referred to this "back-chat" and, determined to out-Herod Herod, said that he would like to see a return to the policy of two or three centuries ago. "We still have," he continued, "the largest export trade in Europe and, as far as manufactured goods are concerned, the largest export trade in the world." The fact that this export trade has fallen sadly away in proportion to the world's trade development is as nothing to Mr. Lloyd George compared with his debating point; but Mr. Lloyd George recks little of facts. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, in his reply to the spokesman of the Opposition, was bland, but not very helpful. One statement, however, was outstanding. "The necessary information," he said, "was ready for such a conference. It was information which could not be published broadcast and it covered every point which could arise." The motive for this secrecy does not appear to have been forthcoming, but much interest was aroused by the news that a Committee of Civil Servants, under the presidency of Sir John Anderson, who had been Permanent Secretary of the Home Office, had been appointed to collate evidence for the conference.

The matter is not unimportant, since the proposed conference, if the chief guide of its deliberations is to be a Civil Service report, will not be of much use. Nevertheless, whatever the conference may recommend, the Government and their Liberal supporters are not likely to adopt the only measure that can help to remedy unemployment. At the moment Socialists and Liberals are more in accord than ever, and the prime reason is not far to seek. A mauvaise honte forbids Labour to accept a Conservative policy, while a faith, unfaithful because it is out of date, keeps the Liberals falsely true to the doctrines of Cobden. The only serious suggestion from the Government benches was Mr. Macdonald's project that much could be done by local authorities working in association with the Government. Much always can be done by these methods, but they are not adequate to cope with a situation so grave as that which exists to-day. A strange anomaly pervaded the debate; for a Socialist Prime Minister defended the existing condition of things against a Conservative who advocated a "root and branch" reform. Sir Austen Chamberlain's motion finally was defeated by twenty-nine votes, and Labour, by a narrow margin, again has escaped defeat, while Liberalism has lost another fragment of its entity as a separate party. The decline and fall of the Liberal Party—the phrase, perhaps, is rather generous to its present leaders—draws on apace.

Linen Salesmen.

Mr. Joseph Devlin's remarks at the Advertising Club of Ulster's annual meeting are full of significance for the linen industry. At present, he observed, the world suffers not from any scarcity of goods, but from over-production. Manufacturers of every class of commodity are compelled to enter into competition with innumerable rivals, and amid the commercial maelstrom the chance of survival is far from great. Ulster's linen industry has suffered severely. Recent years have seen not only the advent of numerous synthetic fabrics that can be produced at a vastly less cost, but the rise of a rival linen industry in many foreign countries. Admittedly, this foreign linen has not the peculiar excellence of that which comes from Ulster, but it is very definitely cheaper, and, to the uneducated eye, in no respect inferior. This misconception must be removed if Ulster linen is to regain its former position among the fabrics. Hitherto, its manufacturers have paid little enough attention to efficient marketing. They have printed excellent booklets, it is true, setting forth the virtues of their wares, and they have bedecked stands at most of the cross-Channel exhibitions with carefully chosen specimens. These methods, however, are but the alphabet of salesmanship. We grant that the manufacturers are at a disadvantage in comparison with producers of other goods, but that is largely their own fault. They act in concert instead of "boosting" their individual wares. The public of Britain and other countries dislikes anonymity, and will not react to an appeal to "Buy Ulster Linen" when it is not told specifically where Ulster linen can be obtained. Modern methods are needed in a world where effective salesmanship and advertising make all the difference between prosperity and defeat. Mr. George Marshall reprimanded the business men of Belfast on their failure to recognise this fact, and Mr. Devlin pointed out a way of salvation. He suggested that the linen interests ought to educate an army of young, intelligent and enterprising men as "missionaries." Not only must these ambassadors possess the art of attracting customers, but they must have so thorough a knowledge of linen and the linen industry that they will be able to analyse and examine goods for the customers' benefit. They must have an eye to recognise the type of a customer at a glance, and patience to endure him if he is undecided or difficult. To obtain such potential salesmen ought not to be a troublesome task; for there are hundreds of youths holding minor positions in linen firms, whose prospects of advancement have been blasted by the depression; and many have been "ground" so thoroughly in their trade that they would need little further education. We believe that Mr. Devlin's suggestion is sound, and that his missionary host could prove immensely valuable to the linen industry. By similar methods foreign—especially American—firms have attained success; and Ulster's industry is in so perilous a state that every suggestion should obtain a trial.

Irish Libraries.

We welcome the publication of An Leabharlann, the new quarterly organ of the Library Association of Ireland. It is a bright little periodical, and, although it is intended chiefly for circulation among members of the Library Association, it contains much that is of interest to the general reader. Nothing is more important for the people of Ireland than a good system of libraries. The county libraries already are doing excellent work throughout the country, and the munificence of the late Mr. Andrew Carnegie has brought the masterpieces of world literature to the door-steps of our humblest citizens. The Irish people are fond of reading. Despite the censorship—official and unofficial—they have a love of good books, and the familiarity of the country folk with the English classics often surprises the student of literature. Public libraries are a boon to the people. Naturally, they are abused by those persons who use them merely for the purpose of studying the latest racing news in the daily Press; but throughout Ireland—in the Six Counties, as well as in the Free State—there is a multitude of serious readers who take the fullest advantage of the facilities for study which the public libraries afford. In County Dublin there is a stock of 35,000 books serving a population of 80,483 people. These books are delivered by van to 130 centres in the county, and on an average forty centres are visited every month. More than 40,000 volumes were issued in Wexford last year, while in Leix the issue reached the high figure of 95,000. Evidently the library movement in Ireland is flourishing. Everybody who is interested in letters will wish it well, and we are very glad that the Library Association now has an official organ. There is no better antidote to ignorance and prejudice than the reading of good books; the Ireland of to-day is sorely in need of such an antidote.

Ascot's Deluge.

The vagaries of the British climate are demonstrated in dramatic fashion yesterday when, after a long spell of summer weather, a violent thunderstorm broke over these islands. Dublin was taken completely by surprise. The morning was delightfully fine; but in the afternoon there was a heavy downpour, which lasted for some hours. Ireland's inconvenience, however, was a small matter compared with England's visitation. Yesterday was the great day at Ascot. The races began in glittering style before the King and Queen, and, if the weather had held, Royal Ascot would have achieved an unparalleled success. Unfortunately, the meeting was interrupted by one of the fiercest storms of recent years. The race for the Gold Cup was run in a downpour, and afterwards the meeting was abandoned for the day. Thunder and lightning preceded the deluge, and there was a wild scurry for shelter when the rain began. The lightning was so severe that one man was killed and another was injured. Frocks to the value of many thousands of pounds were ruined; for every woman makes a point of being well dressed at Ascot, and this year the gowns were particularly chic. Reports from the course state that the confusion was indescribable. Beautifully clad women were transformed in the twinkling of an eye into bedraggled figures, drenched to the skin, their proud finery soaked into rags by the merciless torrent. In a few minutes the gayest creations of the Rue de la Paix, upon which so much loving care had been expended, were reduced to the common level of the dish-cloth, and the work of months was undone in an almost incredibly short space of time. The postponed races will be run to-day and to-morrow; but nothing can compensate the women for the cruel havoc that was wrought among their frocks. Many of the stately homes of England were gloomy places last night; for the destruction of a smart gown to a woman must be ranked among the major tragedies of life.

ASCOT STORM-SWEPT.

FASHION REVIEW RUINED.

Thunderstorms ruined Ascot as a dress pageant yesterday. Women racegoers were keen enough to make it as picturesque as it was on the previous day, and arrived in their loveliest dresses. Rain, however, fell down in sheets about the time of the Hunt Cup race parade, and immediately after the race was run, and any attempt at displaying fashions in the paddock was quite out of the question.

Women who were caught in the rain were drenched to the skin in a matter of seconds, and those who wore long frocks unprotected by waterproofs presented a sorry spectacle by the time that the afternoon was over. In its worst wet season Ascot has never known rain to equal it, and racegoers who have braved every kind of weather in the course of their experience in the last few years were terrified by the force of the floods, the thunder and the lightning.

WOMEN SUFFERERS.

Flimsy dresses were a mass of pulp in many instances, especially where their wearers only held paddock tickets, and had no chance of seeking the shelter of a stand. One girl in a very thin frock of chiffon stood under the trees until she was drenched, and then with her soaked draperies clinging to her, as though they were skin-tight, she fled across the grass in search of shelter elsewhere.

Satin shoes were splashed and spotted and ruined completely. Light silk stockings were mud-marked from ankles to knee, flounces of long dresses hung limply down with the water dripping from them, and scores of frocks must have been so completely spoilt that they could never be worn again.

THE FLIGHT BACK TO LONDON.

Dyed voiles and some of the lighter silks were seen with the patterned colours running into each other, and many a white tulle and crinoline hat flapped in uncomfortable folds against the shoulders of the women wearing it.

Immediately that the official notice that racing was abandoned had been posted racegoers ran to the station to return to London.

YESTERDAY IN THE SENATE.

TOWN TENANTS AND RENTS.

TWO BILLS TO BE INTRODUCED.

Mr. T. WESTROPP BENNETT, Chairman, presided at yesterday's meeting of the Irish Free State Senate.

On the second stage of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Bill, 1930,

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY, Minister for Justice, said that the control of houses under existing legislation would terminate on the 24th of this month. This bill proposed to continue the period until December 31st, 1930.

Sir JOHN KEANE said that he would make his usual protest against this hardy annual. As long as a measure of that kind remained on the Statute Book it would be impossible ever to settle the housing question. The only rational way was to deal with it through private enterprise, which would not operate unless this bill was dropped. He hoped that in the larger contemplated measure the Minister would allow rents to operate on the ordinary economic basis. Rents were the only commodity now controlled. Food, clothing and other services were operating in a free market, and were rapidly adjusting themselves to the ordinary laws of supply and demand.

Mr. O'FARRELL said that he would remind Sir John Keane that the rents of houses built since 1919 were not controlled. Though State subsidies, rate remissions and every possible encouragement that could be given had been given, private enterprise had not responded in a way calculated to settle the housing problem in the next ten or fifteen years.

Mr. COMYN said that he believed that the rents of houses in towns ought to be restricted by a permanent law.

Mr. FITZGERALD-KENNEY said that he hoped to introduce two measures in the Dail—one dealing with the town tenants' question on a permanent basis, and the other dealing with rent restrictions.

Mr. JOHNSON said that the necessity for State legislation concerning housing had been proved up to the hilt.

The bill was read a second time.

ELECTRICITY BOARD AND RATES.

On the second reading of the Electricity (Supply) (Amendment) Bill, 1930,

Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for Industry and Commerce, explained the provisions of the measure.

Mr. COMYN said that the Senate should see that the fishermen at Killaloe received compensation for the loss of fishing rights.

Sir JOHN KEANE urged the Minister for Industry and Commerce to make a case showing why an entirely new practice in regard to rating law had been introduced in the bill. Exemptions he could understand, but stereotyping was puzzling, and he could not see just how far this stereotyping extended. It was an unnecessary complication to introduce into the fairly well-established and straightforward valuation laws.

Mr. McGILLIGAN said that this was a new practice in rating law, and he did not hold it up as a model, because it was only a temporary expedient. Now was hardly the time to embarrass the undertaking by putting upon it heavy obligations that were never considered. There was a case for stereotyping for a year or two.

The Minister added that if he compensated the Killaloe fishermen he would have to compensate the whole population of the Free State, because everybody had a right to fish in the Shannon.

The second stage was passed.

VOCATIONAL BILL AND COMPULSION.

On the second stage of the Vocational Education Bill,

Professor O'SULLIVAN, Minister for Education, said that this bill was the result of dissatisfaction felt by his Department with the system as it existed at present. The main provisions of the bill followed the recommendations of the Special Commission, with two exceptions. It was found impossible to devise any working system or measure by which they could enforce compulsory attendance at the classes of students of the ages from fourteen to sixteen years. The other matter was the recommendation of the Commission on the question of apprenticeship legislation. This question would be dealt with by the Ministry for Industry and Commerce, which was preparing a bill. The measure which they were now considering proposed to deal with the education of the large mass of young people of fourteen to sixteen years of age and upwards.

Mr. FARREN said that he was in favour of the proposals contained in the bill, and the Minister was to be congratulated on introducing it. He regretted that the Minister had not accepted the Commission's recommendation of compulsory attendance between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years. A boy's character was being moulded between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years, and if their time was not occupied their characters might be destroyed, because there was no employment in this country for young people.

THE LANGUAGE QUESTION.

Mr. O'DOHERTY said that he was in agreement with the general principles of the bill. Teachers of technical subjects in the country, particularly teachers of Irish, had a feeling of unrest as to their future under the bill.

He read a resolution passed by a Gaelic League branch, calling on public representatives to use their influence to establish Irish teachers. There was compulsory Irish in the primary schools, and he was of opinion that that compulsion should be extended to continuation and technical schools.

THE McGILLYCUDDY said that he would like to be assured that the money available would be divided fairly according to the population of each county.

Mr. LINEHAN said that the farmers were grumbling against the imposition of this tax, and, in fact, were hoping that the Government would bring in a bill to abolish rates altogether. (Laughter.)

Mr. CONNOLLY said that an amendment would probably be put in for the elimination of the political test clause, as it was believed that the time for the inclusion of such a clause had passed.

Mr. JOHNSON said that he had hoped that more attention would have been paid to inviting educational committees to make provision in their programmes for tutorial lectures and extension classes, not directly associated with the usual occupation of the pupils, and yet not necessarily excluding it.

POOR AREAS AND FUNDS.

Sir JOHN KEANE said that under the present method the poorer districts, which were most in need of the provisions of this Act, were really less assisted in the matter of funds. A penny rate in the County of Kerry yielded twopence per head of the population, while a penny rate in Meath yielded ninepence. If the Minister said that the State was going to bear the costs "fifty-fifty," presumably the State contribution would be equally weighted against the poorer county. He would have liked the Minister to have told them more as to his opinion of the results achieved hitherto by the Technical Committees. He thought that they were singularly ineffective in advancing the cause of technical education, and he was hoping that there might be some provision for a director, on the lines of the City Manager, who would be entrusted with the administration of the scheme. The Technical Committees had little expert knowledge, and were often influenced in their outlook.

A BAFFLING PROBLEM.

Professor O'SULLIVAN, in replying to the debate, said that he fully realised the importance of, if possible, securing the compulsory attendance at these schools of young people between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years who were not in employment and who lived in towns. When they came to consider the application of a clause of that kind they found that it was impracticable. The difficulty of enforcing attendance on boys and girls casually in and casually out of employment would be insuperable. So far they had not been able to find out anything that would satisfactorily solve this problem.

No statutory provision was necessary to safeguard the position of Irish. So far as adult education was concerned, there was nothing in the bill limiting the instruction given to any age. In the bill they tried to remedy what they had found from experience to be some of the defects in the existing system of technical education.

The Minister informed Mr. Comyn that the number of officers likely to be abolished under the bill would be very few.

The second stage was passed, and it was agreed to take the Committee stage on the 2nd July.

LONDON LETTER.

A STORMY ASCOT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

There were fewer long frocks at Ascot to-day; for the threat of rain was over everything, and all the women were carrying raincoats to cover their dresses in the event of a fall. Shortly after noon there was a slight thunderstorm with a sharp shower of rain, and the frocks disappeared at once. The paddock, usually the meeting's gayest centre, became a parade of mackintoshes, and the plainness of these useful garments contrasted curiously with the masses of lace and silks that had been seen a few minutes before. A huge tarpaulin had to be laid over a section of the Grand Stand adjacent to the Royal Box, which was struck by lightning last night. The afternoon's sport was ruined by a succession of thunderstorms, accompanied by tremendous rains, and after the race for the Royal Hunt Cup racing was abandoned for the day. One of the storms was the worst experienced at Ascot for thirty years, the thunder being almost continuous, and a bookmaker was struck and killed by lightning. Many ladies had their dresses ruined, while the approaches to the course became a sea of mud.

London's Weather.

London was quite demoralised this morning after the heavy storms of the early hours and the preceding evening. Floods were reported from all parts, and in several places people were driven from their homes. In the Notting Dale district thirty people had to spend the night in a Mission Hall. Between four and five o'clock sleep was banished from most homes by the terrible peals of thunder and the heavy rains, and for nearly three-quarters of an hour the thunder was almost incessant. Later, between nine and ten o'clock, there was another storm, almost tropical in violence, accompanied by heavy rain, and the streets were flooded with the rushing waters. A great number of houses and places were struck by lightning during the storms. The afternoon saw a succession of storms, some of which were very violent.

The Commons's Long Sitting.

Only the need to prepare an Order Paper for the usual sitting, to be held later, prevented the House of Commons from sitting indefinitely. The sitting, which was one of the longest of recent years, lasted nearly twenty-one and a half hours, and when it is recalled how very tamely the proceedings opened yesterday the liveliness of the debate throughout the night will seem somewhat surprising. Tempers became frayed and thin, and there were many bitter exchanges between Mr. Snowden, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill. When the proceedings were drawing to a close somebody blew a police whistle and the shrill blast echoed throughout the House. Members shouted angrily, but the culprit was not recognised.

Electoral Reform.

Once again there are rumours about the proceedings of the Ullswater Conference on Electoral Reform, and it is said that the Conference virtually has proved abortive, since it is unlikely to make recommendations of any kind, particularly in regard to alterations of the system of voting at present in use. It is suggested that the members of the Conference have been able to reach agreement on scarcely any point. If this is so, the blame is due to the manner in which these Conferences are set up; for they consist of representatives of each party, who do little save to advance the views of that party and attack the views held by the others. On a point so delicate as electoral reform, it would have been wiser to have set up a Commission of scholars or scientists. It is said that the Liberals on the Commission urged proportional representation, and that this was opposed strenuously by the other parties, while the Socialists suggested the alternative vote, which the Liberals condemned.

Mr. Macdonald's Lieutenants.

In Labour circles it is remarked that Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, having lost Sir Oswald Mosley as his general factotum, has replaced him by Lord de la Warr, who now haunts Downing street and the Prime Minister's room at the House of Commons. In this connection, it is notable that a Labour demonstration will be held in the grounds of Buckhurst Castle, the country house of the Earl de la Warr, on July 26th, when Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will make a great fighting speech for the whole of his party. During his tenure of the Premiership, Mr. Macdonald has had a succession of lieutenants from the intelligentsia—Lord Arnold, Mr. Noel Buxton, Sir Oswald Mosley, and Lord de la Warr. Mr. Macdonald's motive in the choosing of such men for the go-between work which necessarily must be carried out can be understood easily. Tact is frequently an accomplishment not possessed by Labour members.

An Event at Portmarnock.

The British Ladies' Golf Championship next year will be played on the course of the Portmarnock Club, County Dublin, beginning on July 8th. This decision was announced by the Ladies' Golf Union to-day, and it is recalled that whereas the Championship has been played at Portrush and Newcastle, County Down, on four occasions, next year will be the first time that a British Championship of any kind has been played in the Irish Free State. This will lend considerable interest to the meeting.

The Tourist Traffic.

Mr. Gillett has informed Sir Walter de Frece that no tourists' bureaux are subsidised by the British Government abroad, but the Travel Association has opened an office in Buenos Ayres and is about to open one in New York, while it is hoped to have offices in Paris and other cities later. Directly or indirectly, as the Minister said, State subsidised tourist bureaux are maintained in Great Britain by Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Italy, Norway, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, as well as the Dominions and some Colonies. Last year the British Government made a grant of £5,000 to the Travel Association, and Mr. Gillett understands that France allocated £8,000 for national publicity services, while in Italy and Sweden the sums available are £5,350 and £16,650 respectively.

THE HOUSING BILL.

On the second stage of the Housing Bill, 1930,

Mr. COMYN suggested that the terms of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Land Trust should be clarified.

Mr. JOHNSON said that it would take twelve years to build the eighteen thousand houses required in Dublin, even though they doubled the rate of building of the past seven years. The Minister's method of dealing with the building industry was very unsatisfactory. It was entirely obvious that what was required was better organisation on the employers' side and on the side of the workers.

The debate was adjourned.

The second stage of the Labourers Bill, 1930, and the second stage of the Trade Loans (Guarantee) (Amendment) Bill, 1930, were passed.

The Senate adjourned at 7.45 p.m. until 3 p.m. to-day.

DEATHS AND DAMAGE IN GREAT STORM.

TWO MEN KILLED BY LIGHTNING AND THREE DROWNED.

RACING ABANDONED AT ASCOT.

SLIGHT FLOODING CAUSED IN IRELAND.

TWO men were killed by lightning—one a bookmaker at Ascot and the other a labourer at Warrington—and three were drowned in the New Mills district, near Manchester, in yesterday's great storm, which was described as one of the worst experienced for many years.

Floods occurred in most places in England, and considerable damage was caused to property.

The Ascot race meeting, at which many women were drenched to the skin, was abandoned after the Royal Hunt Cup had been run.

A thunderstorm broke over Dublin about five o'clock, and continued for a considerable time. It was accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, which resulted in the flooding of some basements. Slight damage was caused to several business premises.

At Mountmellick a young man was struck by lightning and rendered blind and unconscious.

THE SCENE AT ASCOT.

WORST STORM FOR FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. Walter Holbein, a bookmaker, of Ribble avenue, Southport, was killed by lightning during a terrific thunderstorm which put a dismal end to racing at Ascot, after the Royal Hunt Cup, the second race yesterday, had been run. He was standing beneath an umbrella when the lightning caught the steel ribs, ripping the umbrella to pieces. Mr. Holbein fell unconscious to the ground and died in hospital without regaining consciousness. Mr. Holbein was 43 years of age, and was an international Association football player. He played some years ago for the Everton Football Club.

OTHER PERSONS INJURED.

His clerk was also struck, but only suffered from slight shock. Mr. F. B. Rhodes, of Leeds, was also struck by lightning and had his leg slightly injured. It was reported that a woman was struck by lightning as she stood near the main gate, but was able to go home after receiving first aid from an ambulance man.

Nothing like this storm has been known at Ascot for the last fifty years.

After Mr. Holbein was struck he had a red scar on the Adam's apple of his throat, and small red markings were found on the upper part of his chest.

THE BREAKING OF THE STORM.

The horses in the Royal Hunt Cup were half-way down the course when there was a loud peal of thunder, followed by a vivid flash of lightning. Next moment the crowd were cheering the victor; then came the deluge. The thunder roared and lightning played around the stands almost continuously. There was a wild scramble for shelter, and women who were caught in the rain were drenched to the skin in a matter of seconds. Within twenty minutes the paddock was a lake, the water reaching nearly to the top of the seats on the lawn.

The storm continued with unabated fury for nearly an hour. The three o'clock race was postponed, and later it was announced that racing had been abandoned for the day. Immediately thousands of people made direct for the railway station. Some of the large marquees on the low-lying ground were flooded to a depth of two feet.

THE SUN RE-APPEARS.

In the evening the sun shone again, and the officials were confident that everything would be in good condition by to-day.

In contrast to yesterday's storm, the racing at Ascot on the Wednesday last year was marked by a fire on the course. A large clump of gorse, about three hundred yards from the paddock, caught fire just as the horses were leaving the paddock for the last race. The flames were beaten out by police.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED.

George Seddon, of Ashton street, Warrington, a corporation employé, was killed by lightning when the storm broke over South Lancashire and North Chester. A fellow-workman, John Jones, of Golborne street, Warrington, was slightly injured, and after attention at the infirmary was able to go home.

An eye-witness said that the man seemed to be in the centre of the storm. Seddon was working on land near St. Elphin's Park, Warrington, which is being converted into a recreation ground. He was loading soil into a cart and Jones was assisting him, when there was a blinding flash, and both men were thrown to the ground.

A valuable pedigree Jersey cow grazing in a field, and belonging to Mr. F. G. Wood, of Kenton lane farm, Kenton, Middlesex, was killed by lightning.

Two houses were struck by lightning at Brentwood, Essex. The first house was struck at the chimney, and had the roof stripped. Mrs. Jarvis, an elderly widow, was rescued unconscious from one of the houses, which was filled with smoke and debris. She was suffering from severe shock.

INCH OF RAIN IN HALF AN HOUR.

Over an inch of rain fell over Leicester in half an hour, and many houses in low-lying parts were flooded. Much damage was done to stock at the open air market. The cricket ground was flooded and the game between Leicestershire and Worcestershire was stopped for the day.

Several houses in Liverpool were flooded.

The London, Midland and Scottish Railway line was flooded in Kilsby tunnel, six miles from Rugby, yesterday, and the loop line via Northampton was blocked owing to a landslide due to the rain. Luggage of the Imperial Press delegates, which was following them to the North, was held up, and had to be sent forward by car. The main line was cleared about 6.30 p.m., and at the same time the down line on the loop was also cleared.

Motor coaches were used to take passengers to intermediate stations between Northampton and Rugby. Owing to the extensive flooding in Kilsby tunnel the London, Midland and Scottish express, Royal Scot, to London was diverted at Rugby via Market Harborough and Northampton yesterday.

COURT CASE DURING STORM.

During the height of the storm Sir Chartres Biron, the Chief Metropolitan magistrate, tried to hear a case in the special racecourse police court at Ascot. A bookmaker and his clerk were charged with stealing £2. Prisoners and witnesses were grouped close to the bench that their voices might be heard above the thunder. Eventually the accused were ordered to return the £2 to the prosecutor, and the case was dismissed.

The rainfall at Cheltenham set up a new local "record" of more than three-and-a-half inches in two-and-a-half hours, as compared with the previous maximum of just over two inches 48 years ago. Lightning set fire to one house at Cheltenham, and many business premises were flooded. At the L.M.S. station the railway lines were submerged. Before the last thunderclap observers reported seeing a large ball of fire shoot across the sky with a trail of smoke.

Eight cows under a tree on Broad Farm, Hellingly, Sussex, were killed by lightning.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

Three men were drowned in the New Mills district, fourteen miles from Manchester. Mr. John Ollerenshaw, landlord of the Little Mill Inn at Rowarth, New Mills, was attempting to get through the back door of the hotel when he was carried away by the river, which had overflowed its banks. His body was recovered later. Charles Gannon, who was staying at a lodging house near the river at New Mills was washed away. His body has not been recovered. Peter Warburton (72) was working in a rope works at Charlesworth, New Mills, when water rushed in and trapped him. His body was recovered shortly afterwards.

Many houses in the lower part of New Mills were flooded, and children had to be rescued by ladders from bedroom windows. Police Constable Millward swam through the flood and rescued some of the children. An iron girder bridge leading to a foundry was washed away with a portion of the offices, and another bridge at the bottom of New Mills, and near a Wesleyan chapel, had part of its parapet swept away.

At Manchester three-quarters of an inch of rain fell within an hour, and road traffic and trains were delayed by flooding. A landslide occurred at Bredbury, near Manchester.

At Stockport a wholesale grocer's warehouse was struck.

Maidenhead Police Station was struck by lightning. One of the towers was smashed, and the brick work fell into a portion of the courtroom below and put out of action the electrical fire alarm apparatus.

At Leigh, Lancs., floods penetrated into several mills, and the operatives had to cease work for the day. The Leigh, Lancs., Fire Brigade was called out to a house stated to have been set on fire through the lead-in wire of a wireless set being struck by lightning. A man driving a horse was struck by lightning, and conveyed to the Leigh Infirmary suffering from shock. Other houses and property in the same district was damaged by lightning.

MORE TO FOLLOW.

Reports of severe local storms and heavy rainfall poured into the Air Ministry from all over the British Isles. No part of the country seemed to have escaped. Local storms will probably continue all over the country, an Air Ministry official told a reporter last night. There is a very definite change at the moment, but it is hardly likely that the storms will last for more than another twenty-four hours.

Serious flooding and dislocation of traffic was general all over London. On the L.M.S. Railway both tracks of the electric system between Midway Park and Dalston were flooded during the afternoon, and traffic was suspended for nearly half-an-hour.

SCENES AT STATIONS.

Chaotic scenes were witnessed at some of the London underground stations, where thousands of passengers arrived to find that their trains were not running. Harassed officials attempted to answer dozens of questions at once, and were jostled hither and thither by the excited crowds.

The press was so great at London Bridge Station that there was a danger at one time of people being forced on to the line. When, after two hours, a skeleton service was introduced there were as many as eighteen to twenty people in a carriage.

STORM IN DUBLIN.

Yesterday afternoon a violent thunderstorm broke over Dublin and continued for a considerable time. The forenoon and early afternoon had been fine, but shortly before 4 o'clock the clouds darkened, and without further warning rain came down in torrents.

Loud peals of thunder followed, accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning, which completely lighted up the streets, and people fled in all directions in search of shelter. In a few seconds the streets were deserted, and water came running along the drains and gullies like small rivers.

'Buses and trams bound for the suburbs were besieged and quickly filled with passengers hurrying home, while every doorway which provided cover from the downpour was availed of by those caught unaware.

PREMISES DAMAGED.

The rain did damage to some business premises. The Princess Cinema and Mr. P. McGee's licensed premises, Rathmines road, were flooded, and the Rathmines Fire Brigade were called to pump out the water.

In Grafton street a number of basements suffered from flooding, but not to any great extent.

At the coast watering places there was little to show that a violent storm was raging a few miles away. Howth did not have a shower of rain, while in Bray rain fell only for a few minutes, and then everything cleared again.

At Dundrum, Lucan, Malahide, Shankill and Skerries there was rain for about half an hour.

The storm passed quickly, and at 7 o'clock normal weather conditions prevailed.

YOUTH STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

A severe thunderstorm broke over Mountmellick yesterday. The lightning did much damage and rendered blind and unconscious a young man named Pat Conroy, of Acrigar, a well-known "soccer" football player.

He was going into a cowhouse with a pitchfork in his hand when a flash hit

THE ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

WEATHER BECOMES FAVOURABLE.

START CONSIDERED LIKELY TO-MORROW.

The start of the Atlantic flight of the Southern Cross is expected to take place to-morrow morning from Portmarnock.

Following the receipt of a favourable weather forecast yesterday, Major Kingsford-Smith decided that, if this afternoon's forecast was also favourable, he and his companions would take-off to-morrow.

Weather conditions as they at present exist make it probable that the Silver Strand will be the starting point.

Major Kingsford-Smith, with a number of companions, again visited Portmarnock yesterday morning. The tides will be favourable at the proposed starting hour for several mornings.

The weather conditions prevailing over the Atlantic at present are favourable, and are likely to become even more so. A high depression has been moving steadily north for the last few days, and it is anticipated that this progress will be continued. Should this be so, then it is more than likely that the Southern Cross will have east winds—"tail winds"—for most of the way across.

YESTERDAY IN THE DAIL

DEPUTIES TAKE A HOLIDAY.

SPANISH VISITOR WHO SLEPT.

THE SAD SAGA OF THE LOBSTER.

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

All the amusing episodes occurred early in the Dail yesterday. No sooner was question time over than Deputy Boland led a certain Mr. Geoghegan to the Speaker's Chair, and that functionary promptly shook him warmly by the hand. Mr. Geoghegan apparently had just been elected a T.D. for Longford-Westmeath, and the Fianna Fail benches generally appeared quite well satisfied with the result.

Mr. Geoghegan is a tall, rather distinguished looking man, who had, it must be admitted, chosen a very suitable background. He had been sitting inconspicuously in the obscurity of the division lobby until the moment came for him to make his début. His appearance on the floor of the House was the signal for a tremendous outburst of cheering from the Fianna Fail benches, Mr. Cooney shouting above the din: "Notice to quit."

ELECTION POSTERS.

That irrepressible pair, Deputies Aiken and Corry, were not slow to improve the shining hour. They stood up and waved Cumann na nGaedheal election posters, bearing the legends: "Delany is winning" and "A 4 to 1 win for Delany."

Moreover, a certain gentleman named Buckley, a member of the Opposition Party, rose up and asked: "What steps is the President taking to prevent the British landing at Clontarf?" This persiflage did not appear much to the taste of members of the Government benches, who looked, if the Americanism can be permitted, rather "peeved."

A large number of spectators, principally women, had assembled in the Public Gallery to cheer on the Fianna Fail recruit. Their clothes and the sunburnt faces of their escorts suggested that they had come up from some country district, possibly Longford-Westmeath, for the day. Among them was a Spanish gentleman and his wife.

ROUSED BY THE BELL.

The Spanish gentleman, very sensibly, went to sleep, and, being awakened by the division bell, inquired his way to the Senate. A quarter of an hour later he was discovered sitting, even more sensibly, on the steps of Leinster House, holding up an umbrella; for it was raining torrentially.

Several bills were "rattled" through at break-neck pace before Dr. Ryan told the sad saga of the lobster. He told of a great occasion when the Civic Guards had come to the rescue of the Irish Navy just when the crew of a French trawler were on the point of "beating them up" with their sabots.

Mr. Mullins said it was time that the Irish fisheries were looked after instead of foreign conventions. He spoke of "poison gas" and other methods of modern warfare which the Free State will not employ in future.

A SCORNFUL DEPUTY.

Mr. McDonagh was very scornful of the Fianna Fail Party. It was ridiculous and nonsensical to talk of seaplanes or petrol boats for the Irish lobsters, for what use would they be on "dark and blowy nights," when the poachers always made their raids. "The gentlemen opposite spoke with one eye on the reporters' gallery and the other on the ballot box."

Deputy White went further and declared that local men piloted trawlers to the places where they poached.

The Minister for Fisheries plaintively pointed out that no amount of legislation would induce the herring to come to the Irish coast if it did not suit him.

The deputies then went home for a holiday, which will last until the 19th of November.

THIRTY-FIVE MINERS KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Wednesday.

Thirty-five miners were killed to-day in a fire damp explosion in the Maria Mine, in the Artemovsk district.

The Ukrainian Government has taken immediate relief measures to assist the families of the victims.

him, breaking the fork to pieces and blinding him.

He was immediately attended by Dr. McCann and Father Kelly.

DAILY STORMS IN FRANCE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Wednesday.

Thunderstorms continue in various parts of France, and the Weather Bureau holds out no prospects of immediate finer weather. The long series of daily downfalls is believed to be without precedent in this country, at all events, during the fifty-seven years in which detailed meterological records have been kept.

Some parts of the country have now become afflicted with daily thunderstorms for seventeen consecutive days.

Fifteen houses collapsed as the result of floods at Auzon Haute Loire, near to which the main line from Paris to Nimes has been cut. The rush of water attained such force that motor cars, and even heavy machinery, were washed away.

THE DESTINY OF INDIA.

SIR JOHN SIMON ON HER NEEDS.

"UNDERSTANDING HELP OF BRITAIN."

Sir John Simon, broadcasting from London last night, explained the work of the Indian Commission and their first report, which has been issued.

India, he said, was not some single problem; it was a confused complication of questions, which could not be disposed of in a pose of confident omiscience, or of vague sympathy.

"It is a collection of problems which call for hard study and clear thinking and the best that brains and heart can offer; the most fascinating, I think, and the most far-reaching of all contemporary question; for upon its wise and sympathetic handling now hang issues incomparably great for the whole world."

The desire to advance towards self-government, which was so deeply felt and so fervently expressed by the spokesmen of political India, was but a reflection of the belief held by Englishmen in the virtues of responsible institutions, as they had been developed in the course of the history of the British Empire.

ENORMOUS DIFFICULTIES.

"It is true that the lesson could be wisely applied by India by understanding and providing for the very special circumstances of the Indian case. It is true that many Indian statesmen tend to disregard or to minimise the enormous difficulties to be overcome in the case of India; but the growth of this belief in self-government in so many Indians, and of the hope that it may one day be attained, is in itself an achievement brought about by the power of an idea which Britain had spread throughout the world, and which is Britain's greatest contribution to the art of government.

"We Britishers should never forget that it is the teachings of our own political philosophy, the spread of a knowledge of our own literature, and the deliberate declarations of our own statesmen which have developed the powerful forces in India which go by the name of the Nationalist movement. It is only folly and ignorance to pretend that the coming of Britain to India did not confer upon that distracted continent many things which it seems utterly to have lost; and no serious student can deny the greatness of the achievement which Britain has thus accomplished.

"But it would be a still finer achievement to contribute our own experience and our own constructive statesmanship to the progress of India towards the goal that has been set before us. She cannot reach it alone; she cannot arrive at self-government through chaos; she cannot reach it by repeating some general formula without facing and overcoming the difficulties which a mere formula does nothing to remove.

WHAT INDIA NEEDS.

"Great as has been the contribution which Britain has already made to India's material progress, India now needs more than ever the understanding help of Britain to achieve her ultimate destiny. If she will co-operate in the task we in Britain have a contribution to make which we must make with sympathy, friendship and understanding."

Sir John said that the Indian Commission had to investigate and describe the working of the system of Indian Government set up some ten years ago, and they were to report whether, and to what extent, it is desirable to establish in British India the principle of responsible Government, or to extend, modify, or restrict the degree of responsible government now existing. That would be the main topic of their second volume.

"The task which we have been set is admittedly a very difficult one, and there will be much discussion before a decision is reached. Both those who are anxious to see a rapid advance to more complete self-government in India and those who fear the dangers of going forward too swiftly will have much to say, and we shall find, of course, that criticism, however useful and well informed, is easier than construction."

The first part of the report provided a survey as fair and impartial as they could make it. The second part, which was to be published next Tuesday, was a volume of about equal length, containing the comments which seemed to them to be suggested by the survey, and putting forward their unanimous recommendations on all important points.

CONGRESS MEETING IN BOMBAY.

PRESIDENT ON STORIES OF NEGOTIATIONS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BOMBAY, Wednesday.

The Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting President of Congress, who has been invited here by the local Congress Committee, marched in procession to Congress House to-day and addressed a mass meeting emphasising the need of intensifying the boycott programme. He congratulated Bombay and Gujerat on the lead they had given to the Civil Disobedience movement.

Referring to the suggestion for the calling off of the campaign as a preliminary to peace negotiations, he declared that negotiations must always precede any talk of a suspension movement.

Mr. V. J. Patel, ex-Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, said students more than any others would eventually benefit by the present fight. He appealed to them to give up their studies for a twelvemonth and devote themselves to Congress work.

Mr. G. V. Kapadia, President of the Bombay Provincial Committee, against whom a warrant has been out for several days, surrendered himself to the police at the close of the meeting, which he harangued. He only arrived in Bombay this morning with the Pandit Motilal Nehru from Allahabad.

NO LAND TAX CAMPAIGN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT

AHMEDABAD, Wednesday.

Reports from villages in Gujerat indicate that the campaign for the non-payment of land revenue has begun. The Government is attaching moveable property of the defaulting ryots (land holders).

Some of the ryots live in the fields the whole day, and return to sleep in their houses at night.

EMPIRE JOURNALISTS IN BELGIUM.

RECEPTION AT BRUSSELS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BRUSSELS, Wednesday.

The party of British journalist delegates to the Empire Press Conference, who are visiting Belgium at the invitation of the Government, were entertained at luncheon at the Cercle Gaulois to-day. The President of the Club paid a charming tribute to the integrity and fairness of the British Press, as well as to its objective treatment of events. Mr. Clive Holland, who has already been closely connected with Belgium as lecturer for the Belgian Refugees' Fund during the war, and as a member of the Anglo-Belgian Union, expressed the cordial thanks of the guests. A visit was paid to the field of Waterloo, the members of the party going on to Mons, where they were received by the Burgomaster and attended the exhibition of famous painters.

THE WALL ST. DEPRESSION.

SECOND LARGEST SALES THIS YEAR.

IS THE NEW TARIFF RESPONSIBLE?

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

Another resounding market crash echoed through the sombre and draughty canyons of the Wall street district to-day. During the early hours of trading prices began toppling dizzily over, and dropping 5 to 30 points. Once again the overworked ticker was over two hours behind the market, while the sales exceeded seven and a half million—the second largest day for the year.

A moderate rally served to allay the fears of panic-stricken traders early in the afternoon, and about half the previous declines were wiped out. The rally was partly due to a recovery in the Chicago wheat pit, where the early losses of about four cents a bushel were reduced to less than two.

United States Steel, which has been so often used to bolster up a tottering market, declined 156. This is attributed to the pessimistic reviews of the steel industry issued by the financial houses.

A fierce argument is at present going on in the newspapers as to whether the signing of the new tariff is responsible or not for the sickening blows which have rocked Wall street of recent weeks.

Democrats claim that the bouleversement of business has been caused by the enormously increased rates, while Republicans, on the other hand, maintain that the settlement of the long-pending tariff affair has had a calming effect on business and industry. In the meantime unfortunate speculators are being eliminated by hundreds, as the harassed brokers become every day more exigent in their demands to have margin accounts covered.

MALTESE CRISIS.

BISHOPS' STRONG LANGUAGE.

LORD STRICKLAND AT CABINET MEETING.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MALTA, Wednesday.

The Bishop of Gozo, in a circular just issued, denounces "the anti-clerical campaign which continues in all its barefacedness." "Protestantism," it is declared, "exploiting the present situation, and intensifying its destructive propaganda by the subversive Press, has had recourse to other means to conduct its corruptive and nefarious work—namely, by the publication of leaflets full of anti-Christian poison, directed specially against the ecclesiastical authorities. The moment is grave in every sense."

The Bishop goes on to exhort the faithful to prayers, and denounces the Church's "ungrateful and degenerate sons."

Finally, the circular condemns, under penalty of mortal sin, the distribution, retention and reading of all publications emanating from the Moon Printing Press.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S CIRCULAR.

The Archbishop of Malta issues a circular on much the same lines. He deplores "the times we are passing through," which call for special prayers to God, and he recalls the riotous scenes outside St. John's on Whit Sunday, "when the enemies of our religion went so far as to profane the Temple of God in the most sacrilegious manner at the most sacred time of the Holy Sacrifice." His Grace denounces Protestantism, which, he says, is taking advantage of the political tension to become bolder and more unblushing. He puts a like ban to the Bishop of Gozo's on the Moon Press, and finally enjoins the faithful to obey the police orders against demonstrations and gatherings.

BRITISH CABINET AND THE CRISIS.

MATTER TO BE LEFT "WHERE IT IS."

Lord Strickland, Prime Minister of Malta, visited the Foreign Office yesterday morning and afterwards was present at the House of Lords and the House of Commons.

It is understood, says the Press Association, that at the Cabinet meeting yesterday morning the Maltese question was discussed and that a decision was reached. Until the terms have been carefully formulated, however, no further information is available.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. E. Thurtle (Labour, Shoreditch). asked whether the Government proposed to take any action now to mark its dissatisfaction with the attitude of the Vatican in regard to Maltese affairs.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Ramsay Macdonald)—No; the Government is perfectly prepared, so far as relations with the Vatican are concerned, to leave the matter where it is.

THE OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

LEADERS AT END OF FIRST ROUND.

R. T. Jones, Henry Cotton and McDonald Smith shared the lead at the end of the first round of the British Open Golf Championship at Hoylake yesterday with a total of 70 strokes each, with F. Robson and J. Barnes a stroke behind. Jones by his round lowered the amateur "record" for the course by three strokes. A heavy storm severely handicapped the players at times, one of the chief sufferers being W. Nolan, of Portmarnock, who, though out in the worst of the weather, went round in 78.

Of the other Irish players, Mr. D. E. Soulby headed the British amateurs with a fine round of 75, two strokes better than the Malone professional, S. Fairweather, who in turn held a similar lead over Major C. O. Hezlet.

BRITISH AIRMAN KILLED.

A BLACK MONTH FOR THE R.A.F.

Flying-Officer John Cecil Lauga Claxton was killed yesterday when an aeroplane he was piloting crashed on the golf links adjoining the Farnborough (Hants) Aerodrome.

Flying-Officer Claxton, who was the sole occupant of the machine, was attached to the School of Photography, Farnborough.

The machine got into a spin and crashed before the pilot could right it. He received severe head injuries, and died shortly afterwards in the Cambridge Military Hospital.

This is the twenty-second fatal crash in the R.A.F. during 1930, and brings the death roll to thirty-five. There were forty-two deaths during 1929. The present month has been a black one for the R.A.F., nine deaths having occurred.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

THE SIMON REPORT.

INDIAN REACTIONS.

The Times of to-day observes in a leading article:—A full week has passed since the publication in this country and in India of the first part of the Report of the Indian Statutory Commission. There are no signs of any diminution of the interest which its appearance aroused; on the contrary, it has come to be recognised everywhere in this country to be one of those great State documents which no one professing an interest in Imperial affairs can afford to leave unread. No Blue Book or official report of recent years has appealed to a wider circle of readers, and the Stationery Department and the Indian Office between them have incurred some not undeserved criticism for their failure to foresee a demand for this political best-seller, which has altogether exceeded the supply.

After referring to certain hostile Hindu criticism, The Times proceeds:—Not all Hindu newspapers, however, show the same studied indifference. Less extreme elements and the organ of the powerful Justice Party in Madras, which is now broadening its basis to include Brahmins in its ranks, approve the criticisms of dyarchy which the Report contains, and even express the hope that the recommendations may not be so reactionary after all. In other quarters the recognition of Federalism as the true means of Indian union is gaining ground. Very significant, too, after the public declaration of many politicians that the Simon Report would be dead when published, is the demand in all parts of India for the report. Even more than in this country, the demand has outrun the supply, and it is amusing to learn from our Simla Correspondent that some of those who boycotted the Simon Commission are now grumbling at the lack of foresight of the authorities, which has prevented them from securing copies.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS.

Still speaking broadly, the men who count for most are waiting for the second volume in a silence broken by occasional vaticinations. Behind the scenes attempts are being made, sometimes through rather unexpected agencies, to minimise its importance in advance. Stress is laid on the fact that its recommendations will not be binding upon Parliament, or upon the representatievs of the British Government, of the Indian States and of British India, who will take part in the conference this autumn. No one in this country, or for that matter in India, ever asserted the contrary. The members of the Commission did not visit India as judges. But they did represent the three British Parliamentary parties and the two Houses, and their agreement in their study of Indian conditions, and in their recommendations based on that study, is proportionately authoritative and impressive.

It is this unanimity that gives their report an exceptional value, and those Indian leaders who prefer to wait for the second volume might more profitably employ their leisure in a critical examination of the first.

THE CONFERENCE ON UNEMPLOYMENT.

CONSERVATIVES AND PREMIER'S INVITATION.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent writes:—After the Prime Minister had made his offer of a Three-Party Conference on Unemployment, in the House of Commons last night, and Mr. Lloyd George had accepted it on behalf of the Liberal Party, the Conservative leaders met to consider the position. Though no official statement was made during the debate, it is understood that the decision arrived at was that the invitation must be declined, and a letter is to be sent to the Prime Minister explaining the reasons for the decision.

NEW FIANNA FAIL DEPUTY.

MR. GEOGHEGAN TAKES HIS SEAT IN THE DAIL.

In Dail Eireann yesterday, after questions had been disposed of,

The SPEAKER called upon Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C., the newly-elected Fianna Fáil member for Longford-Westmeath, to take his seat.

Mr. GERALD BOLAND (Fianna Fáil, Roscommon), the Opposition Chief Whip, led Mr. Geoghegan down the centre gangway, and his appearance was the signal for an outburst of hand-clapping and cheering from the Fianna Fáil benches, and from a large number of people in the public gallery.

Amidst general laughter, Mr. AIKEN (Fianna Fáil, Louth), and Mr. CORRY (Fianna Fáil, Cork, E.) held up an election poster bearing the inscription, "Delany is winning 4 to 1."

Mr. BUCKLEY (Fianna Fáil, Kildare) created further laughter by asking the Minister for Defence what steps he was about to take to prevent the landing of the British at Clontarf.

Mr. GEOGHEGAN shook hands with the Speaker, and took his seat on one of the Fianna Fáil back benches.

THE NAVAL PACT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CHICAGO, Wednesday.

That the Naval Pact will be ratified without a shadow of doubt is the emphatic opinion of General Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who is returning to his post to-day. "Naval experts of Great Britain, Japan, and the United States say that our respective navies have been ruined. There is the best evidence possible that it is a perfect Treaty," he added. When asked about the present situation in Chicago, where leading citizens have been roused by the recent murder of a well-known reporter of the Tribune to demand a thorough "clean up" of gang land and the corrupt officials who protect its leaders, General Dawes declared that Chicago did not need any defence made for it. "What the hell's the difference what people say about it," exploded the Ambassador. "It will continue to be a great city for centuries, and as for the suggestion of my taking the job of cleaning up the town's crime, why it's just talk. Certainly I will not contribute any talk to the situation, which demands action and will get it."

CRIME IN CHICAGO.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CHICAGO, Wednesday.

A thorough investigation of Chicago's police department and its failure to cope with the rule of the gangs was ordered by the City Council to-day, at its first meeting since the murder of Alfred Lingle, the veteran crime reporter of the Tribune, who was shot by gangsters in a crowded sub-way on June 9th because "he knew too much."

The Mayor, "Big Bill Thompson," whose resignation leading citizens are demanding, announced that the veteran Captain J. H. Alcock, who is known as the "iron man" of the police, has been appointed Acting-Commissioner in place of Mr. Russell, who resigned recently in deference to the popular outcry.

UNEMPLOYMENT POLICY.

THE CONSERVATIVE MOTION.

PREMIER STATES HIS PLANS.

NEW COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The House of Commons last night discussed the Government's policy in regard to unemployment on a vote of £1,500,000 in Committee of Supply. Sir Austen Chamberlain introduced the subject by moving a reduction of the vote, and the other speakers included the Prime Minister and Mr. Lloyd George.

Sir Austen Chamberlain said that since the subject of unemployment was last discussed the machinery that had been set up a year ago for the purpose of dealing with unemployment had been scrapped. The Lord Privy Seal had departed overseas. The then Chancellor of the Duchy had retired to the back benches. The First Commissioner of Works was more occupied with mixed bathing than with unemployment — (laughter) — while the Under-Secretary for Scotland might still be concerned with unemployment, but the result of his efforts was not apparent to anybody. (Laughter.) The Prime Minister was substituting for this old machinery some new Committee, as yet undefined, of which they had no information, except that he himself proposed to preside over it.

With regard to proposals for a non-party conference, Sir Austen said he was not surprised that the Prime Minister showed himself a little coy before Mr. Lloyd George's wooing, because they did not want the same thing. Mr. Lloyd George desired to share power with responsibility, while the Prime Minister desired to share responsibility while retaining all power. (Opposition cheers.)

Before going further into the matter he should like to know what measure of freedom the Prime Minister proposed to allow to such a conference, and whether he would be prepared to carry out its decisions. Further, he asked was the business of the conference to be done in the conference or on the back stair. (Opposition cheers.)

NO NEW IDEA.

He saw the Prime Minister's public utterances on unemployment; no new idea—only suggestions of more work of the kind already tried, only palliatives for the moment, and an extension of the burden on the future. They were to continue the use of drugs which might be necessary, but which could only have an undermining effect on the constitution. The Government had no policy either for agriculture or industry. There was an imperative necessity, not for patch-work remedies and feeble palliatives, but for a review of our whole economic and national policy. (Hear, hear.) The problem of unemployment was the problem of finding markets for the goods we produced and had to sell. (Hear, hear.) Some of the markets were out of our control; but one was within our control, and that was the home market. (Opposition cheers.) We were doing nothing to restore that market to our own people, nor were we doing anything to secure a reasonable share of trade in foreign markets in return for the freedom we gave to foreigners to enter our market.

Sir H. Samuel (Liberal, Darwen)—We share in all the advantages that other countries give.

Sir A. Chamberlain—That is the voice of the middle of last century. (Opposition cheers.) Continuing, he said that the Dominions, where they could not supply their own needs, preferred to take our goods; but no effort was being made to develop reciprocal trade with the Dominions.

PRIME MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

AIMS OF THE CONFERENCE.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald said that while changes were being made in the machinery for dealing with the unemployment problem, he hoped it would be clearly understood that the work of Mr. J. H. Thomas in reorganising our industrial position was being, and would be, continued. It was necessary to prepare British industries to take their due share in the world's consumption of goods, so soon as things became more normal.

While, however, this work was being done there was the present problem of unemployment to be dealt with, and Sir Austen Chamberlain did not seem to him to appreciate this at all. A great deal of good work could still be done by local authorities in association with the Government, and he hoped that the conference just held would prove to be one of the most important steps recently taken from the point of view of short-time attempts to deal with the unemployment problem.

THE PROPOSED CONFERENCE.

With regard to proposals for a non-party conference on unemployment, Mr. Macdonald said that this was no attempt to form either a two-party or a three-party coalition. He did not know what Sir Austen Chamberlain meant by his allusion to back-stairs decisions. It should be hardly necessary to inform him that the invitations sent to two distinguished members of the House were not sent to promote back-stairs influence, but for the purpose of getting together with such friends and helpers as they chose, within reasonable limits, and putting their ideas into a common pool, with the hope of coming to a measure of agreement which would enable important legislation to go through the House with celerity. So far as final decisions were concerned, the responsibility must remain with the Government. The necessary information was ready for such a conference. It was information which could not be published broadcast, and it covered every point which could arise.

We have taken, Mr. Macdonald continued, a body of civil servants from their own departments, and they are directing their whole attention to this problem.

Commander Kenworthy—Is this a new body? It is very important.

Mr. Macdonald—It is an organisation which has been brought together for the purpose of getting more co-ordinated efforts by the Departments. Its head is Sir John Anderson, who had been Permanent Secretary at the Home Office.

Sir Austen Chamberlain—Do I understand that Sir John Anderson has ceased his connection with the Home Office and will occupy a new permanent position?

Mr. Macdonald—I do not wish to be misunderstood. He is seconded for this office. Mr. Macdonald added that if Sir Austen got down to the roots of this problem his outlook as to possible remedies would undergo change in many respects.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE WELCOMES PREMIER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Lloyd George expressed gratification at the announcement made by the Prime Minister. He was prepared to accept all the conditions laid down in regard to the holding of the conference. He was not in the least concerned with the discussion between the two front benches as to who could exhibit the wider gap between pledges and performances, because the situation was too grave for unprofitable discussion. They should discuss the whole position afresh from a national point of view, and consider every proposition put forward with a view to solving the problem. Personally he would not rule out anything. Sir Austen Chamberlain had spoken as if our tariff and revenue conditions put us at a disadvantage, but he forgot that we had still the largest export trade in Europe, and in regard to manufactured goods the largest export trade in the world. If our export trade was only the same as that of other countries, our unemployed would number at least five millions instead of 1,700,000.

In approaching the problem they must consider that the mere expenditure of money would only aggravate it instead of solving it. The money spent must be spent on something that would fructify and fertilise.

An Hon. Member—Roads.

Well, continued Mr. Lloyd George, roads may be considered from two points of view. In one it might be said that they would prove helpful for the development of agriculture and industry. But if they were merely for the purpose of enabling people to indulge in pleasure trips and motor races, he would rule them out at once. On the general question he hoped that the Government would not shrink from using the credit of the nation for the purpose of improving the condition of the nation and for the development and reconditioning of industries.

Mr. Malone urged the Government to treat the report of the Committee on the Cotton Industry as a matter of extreme urgency.

Lady Astor complained that the Government were doing nothing for the unemployed women. Trade unionists, she said, were against women filling positions hitherto occupied by men, and it was well known that the Government were controlled by the trade unions.

Sir J. Gilmour (Conservative, Pollok) considered that it was by the interchange of views expressed in debate across the floor of the House, rather than by means of conferences among leaders, that they should seek to deal with this problem.

Mr. Macdonald—Is the right hon. gentleman speaking for his leader, with whom we are in direct communication, or only for himself?

Sir J. Gilmour—The invitation that has been sent must be answered by the leader of my party. What, he asked, were the terms on which the proposed Conference would meet?

Miss Bondfield, Minister of Labour, in winding up the debate, said that Mr. Baldwin knew the terms on which he had been invited by the Prime Minister to enter into a joint conference. The responsibility for anything done would always be that of the Government.

The amendment for the reduction of the vote was rejected by 259 votes to 230, and the debate was adjourned.

Mr. Michael Bermingham presided at a meeting of the Committee of the Irish Live Stock Exporters' and Traders' Association, Ltd., held in Prosperity Chambers, Dublin, last night.

The following return of live stock exported during the week ended 7th June last was submitted:—Cattle, 10,403; sheep, 17,000; pigs, 3,824. On the motion of Mr. Crowley, it was decided to obtain a list of charges with a view to appeal in any case where the rates are regarded as unsatisfactory.

The following were elected new members: Messrs. M. Donald, Rochfort Bridge; Michael Curran, Sligo; James Devan, Moneygall.

VICTIMS OF STEAMER ACCIDENT.

From Our Own Correspondent.
LIMERICK, Wednesday.

Further particulars with regard to the accident on the steamer Kerry Head, at Limerick at midnight last night, show that there was no explosion in the engine room, and it is not possible to say what actually occurred, pending the evidence at the inquest.

When the accident occured the vessel had only just cleared the docks, and immediately put back to port. The first intimation that anything had occurred was when there was no response from the engine room to the captain's orders, and some short time afterwards the victims, Charles McDermaid, first engineer, and Hugh Park, second engineer, were found dead, having been badly scalded.

The City Coroner, Mr. J. S. McNeice, and a jury opened an inquest in Barrington's Hospital this evening on the bodies of the victims.

Superintendent Stack conducted the inquiry, and Mr. J. J. Dundon, solicitor, appeared for the owners of the vessel, Messrs Mullock and Sons, Limerick.

Captain J. McGaskill, of the Kerry Head, gave evidence of identification, and said that both deceased men were natives of Glasgow and married.

Dr. J. Roberts said that he was called to the docks by telephone at 12.15 this morning, and saw the dead body of Park lying on the dockside. He had extensive scalding of the body, and death was due to shock.

Dr. Mahony, house surgeon, Barrington's Hospital, deposed that McDermaid was dead on admission to the hospital after midnight. The abdomen and limbs were scalded, and, in addition, there was a wound on the back of the head which could be caused by a fall.

On the application of Superintendent Stack, the inquest was adjourned until to-morrow morning for the attendance of a representative of the Marine Department of the Free State Ministry of Industry and Commerce.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

At the inquest on the body of Michael Valentine Kenny (20), of COROFIN, who was drowned while bathing at Lahinch, a verdict was returned that Kenny had met his death by accidental drowning. Comment was made on the absence of life-saving apparatus at Lahinch, and it was stated that the County Board of Health had agreed to supply apparatus.

ENGLISHMAN DROWNED.

Wills, who was a non-swimmer, apparently stepped into a hole in the bottom of the lake and disappeared from view. The body was recovered later.

In his annual report to the CO. WEXFORD Board of Health, Dr. O'Connor, County Tuberculosis Medical Officer of Health, remarked that the death rate for the county in 1928 was 94 per 1,000 above the average for the Free State. The Chairman (Mr. M. J. GILBERT AND SULLIVAN BALL.

GAY SCENE IN THE PLAZA.

A very large gathering assembled in the Plaza Ballroom, Dublin, last night, when a most successful ball was held under the auspices of the Rathmines and Rathgar Musical Society. Fancy dress was worn by the majority of those present, the characters for the costumes being principally chosen from the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Sir Henry Lytton and Miss Bertha Lewis, who wore a lovely gown of white lace, with an embroidered white shawl, kindly undertook to adjudicate and award the prizes.

At midnight those in fancy dress paraded in front of the band stand. The high standard of the costumes made the task of adjudication extremely difficult. The final awards, however, were received with much applause by the assembled guests. Of the various tableaux presented special mention must be made of the group of the Plaza staff, representing the characters from "H.M.S. Pinafore." Other prize-winners were:—Miss Kathleen Sherlock as "Princess Ida," Mrs. Michael MaCabe and Mrs. Knowles as "Iolanthe." The Plaza Embassy Band played a special selection of tunes during the parade, and when dancing was resumed it rendered a very popular selection of music.

CHURCH ASSEMBLY.

BOARDS OF PATRONAGE.

QUESTION OF SALE OF ADVOWSONS.

The Archbishop of York (Dr. Temple) presided over the session of the Church Assembly at Church House, Westminster, yesterday.

On the motion of the Dean of Westminster (Dr. Foxley Norris), the Assembly proceeded with the revision stage of the Benefices (Diocesan Board of Patronage) Measure, which seeks to establish a Board of Patronage in every diocese. The Dean said that the members in charge of the measure felt very strongly that this matter had been far too long delayed.

An amendment moved by Prebendary J. P. Baker (Liverpool) sought to add one layman, nominated by the Parochial Church Council of the particular benefice concerned, to the Diocesan Patronage Board.

Mr. J. H. Best (Edgbaston), speaking to the amendment, said that he felt that the changes which had been made had been to the detriment of the lay element. We feel that we ought to have some voice, however small, in the choice of our pastor, he said.

Mr. J. H. Higginson (Surrey) supported the amendment. He asked if the candidate for the living is a bad candidate, why should not the parish know? Why should not the laity of the parish have the means of finding out before an appointment is made. If he is a good candidate, and is irreproachable, then why should any objections be raised to this at all?

The Bishop of Ely opposed the amendment, and said that the opinion of the Church was strongly against it.

Mr. G. S. Wolstenholme (Sheffield) was strongly in favour of a parish having an opportunity of deciding whether or not a clergyman, however desirable he might be from the patron's point of view, was acceptable or otherwise.

QUESTION OF PRIVACY.

Prebendary Randolph (Frome) said that there was a tremendous feeling among the clergy against the admission of a parishioner for the particular purpose of electing a particular clerk to a particular living, for the simple reason that they could not secure privacy, and could not secure the name from being canvassed up and down the country.

The Bishop of Ripon said that if the amendment were carried it would call attention to the worst joint in the harness of the Church of England at the present time. A state of mutual suspicion between the clergy and the laity.

Lord Hugh Cecil pointed out that there were great objections against allowing the parishioners to appoint an incumbent. One was that they were very apt to prefer the services of the curate with whom they were familiar to those of any other candidate, perhaps very injudiciously. (Laughter.)

There was some laughter when Mr. G. T. Ferguson (Durham) observed that he would like to say to the Bishop of Ely, "It is all very well to dissemble your love; but why did you kick me downstairs?"

The Bishop of Ely (laughingly)—I have not yet; it may come.

The amendment was lost.

The Assembly completed the revision stage of the measure, but postponed consideration of final approval until to-day.

PRESENTATION OF BENEFICES.

A good deal of time was occupied during the afternoon in considering for revision the Benefices (Exercise of Rights of Presentation) Measure, which seeks to regulate the exercise of rights of presentation of benefices. The revision stage was completed, except in respect to one clause, which will be considered to-day.

Sir Thomas Inskip moved that general approval be given to the Benefices Act, 1898 (Amendment) Measure, which seeks to amend the law relating to the patronage of benefices. Sir Thomas said that he had not had very great encouragement in pressing forward with this matter, but he had been persuaded lately that it was an abuse that they, as Churchmen, should no longer tolerate. Those who were members of the Church of England could not complain if they could no longer be allowed to traffic in what was a trust.

He believed that public opinion was now prepared to see the saleability of advowsons abolished altogether. He believed the members of the Church of England in the House of Commons would support this measure. He hoped that the Assembly would say that the Church was determined, if it could, to set its house in order, in this respect at any rate.

After Sir Thomas had concluded his opening speech, it was decided to continue the debate to-day.

The assembly then adjourned.

CRICKET.

CORK MEET WITH SECOND DEFEAT.

HALL'S CENTURY.

Following their reverse by Dublin University on Tuesday in the College Park, Cork County suffered another heavy defeat yesterday, when, at Castle avenue, Clontarf beat them by 160 runs, with six wickets to spare. The Southerners, who batted first, fared badly against the bowling of E. N. Seymour and J. M. Sweeney, and in one and a half hours were dismissed for 87, E. L. Gaffney with 29 being top scorer. Half the side were out for 75, and the last five wickets only added 12 runs. Seymour got three wickets for 10 and J. M. Sweeney three for 24 runs.

Clontarf got the runs for the loss of one wicket, and went on to make 247 for four wickets. A feature of the batting was the great display by A. R. Hall, who in an hour made 100 before being stumped by O'Donovan off Bond. He hit with great freedom, two 6's and eleven 4's coming from his bat. Seymour batted well for 51, while Owen Sweeney was not long knocking up 31. The Cork fielding was very slack, and several catches were dropped. Score:—

MIDLETON SHOW.

SOME GOOD HUNTERS.

INCREASED ENTRIES.

From Our Reporter.
MIDLETON, Wednesday.

Midleton Show was held to-day in glorious weather, and there was a very large attendance. This being a well known hunting district there was naturally a great number of hunters on show. All other departments were also well filled, the total entries exceeding those of last year. A very popular feature was the flower, fruit, and vegetable section, which was revived after a lapse of some years.

The hunters were described by the judges as being exceptionally good, but the hacks were of mediocre quality.

The premier honour in the registered dairy shorthorn bull class went to Aghamarta Duke, a roan of great substance and symmetry, the property of Mr. William Hennessy, of Ballymacoda. The judge described this animal as "exceptional."

The silver cup, for the best four-year-old hunter mare or gelding bred by a tenant-farmer, was awarded to Patrick Desmond, Midleton, for a comely bay mare sired by Convert Rhue.

The silver cup for the best hunter in the show was awarded to Mr. David Barry, for his upstanding bay gelding.

DUBLIN WEDDING.

MR. A. E. GRIFFITH AND MISS G. C. BURNE.

Yesterday afternoon, in Christ Church, Leeson Park, Dublin, the marriage took place of Mr. Edward Arthur Griffith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Griffith, London, and Miss Grace Caroline Burne, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Burne, 20 Waterloo road, Dublin.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and flowers. There was a full choir, which preceded the bridal party up the aisle. Canon A. E. Hughes, M.A., Rector, performed the marriage ceremony, assisted by the Rev. W. Bell, B.D.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of parchment coloured satin. The bodice was long-waisted and fitted to the figure, while the ankle-length skirt was fluted to form a train. Her veil of Carrickmacross lace fell to the ground, and was held in place by a head-dress of pearls. The bridal bouquet was composed of white sweet pea and asparagus fern.

The bride was attended by four bridesmaids—Miss Violet Burne and Miss Dorothy Burne, sisters of the bride, and Miss Beryl Gamble and Miss Doreen Pearson, cousins of the bride. They wore pretty frocks of pale blue flowered chiffon, with long full skirts and small shoulder capes, with large crinoline picture hats, in a deep cream shade. Their bouquets were of deep pink sweet peas. The bridegrooms gifts to each were silver vanity boxes.

Mr. Donald Griffith supported the bridegroom as best man.

After the ceremony the bride's mother, in a handsome gown of beige lace, with large black picture hat trimmed with beige flowers, held a reception at the Hibernian Hotel.

In the afternoon the bride and bridegroom left for their honeymoon, the former travelling in a blue and white check suit, with blue and white hat, and handbag to match.

BALLYMENA SHOW.

OVER 3,400 ENTRIES.

22,000 PEOPLE PRESENT.

From Our Agricultural Correspondent.
BALLYMENA, Wednesday.

For their 31st annual show at Ballymena to-day, the County Antrim Agricultural Association experienced tropical weather conditions, and had a "record" attendance—22,000 visitors passing through the turnstiles. From an early hour, by road and rail, farmers and their friends thronged the town, and there was a regular procession to the showyard all day. While the work of judging was going on the various ringsides were surrounded by critical farmers, while a close survey was also made of the stock which had already been inspected by the judges. It will be seen that the entries were in excess of last year, so that the fixture continues to maintain its reputation as the greatest one day show in Ireland. As the poultry, pigeons, home industries, and such like exhibits were judged on Tuesday, in order to let the public view them, it may be said to be outgrowing its name, but whether it could be carried over with equal success to another day is doubtful. There was, as usual, a large and interesting display of agricultural implements and machinery, while considerable interest was taken in the working dairy.

In the equine section there was the customary large entry of hunters and young horses likely to make hunters, but in the judges' opinion quality was lacking except among the prize-winners. Cattle made a good all round display, shorthorns and dairy cattle, of shorthorn type, predominating, and in the section for reds, whites and roans, Mr. John Wallace repeated his victory of a year ago by capturing the Bab McKeen and James Kyle Cups for best shorthorn bull, with the nice red, Eclipse. Mr. Thomas Hegan also repeated his last year's victory with Desertcreal Clipper, for which he received the Midland Railway Cup for best shorthorn female.

The display of sheep was one of the best seen at this Show, and there was a useful muster of swine.

An extremely valuable educational exhibit was made by the County Antrim Committee of Agriculture, assisted by the Ministry of Agriculture, Belfast.

The entries totalled 3,427, as compared with 2,641 last year, an increase of 786. These were made up as follows:—

	1930.	1929.
Horses	325	317

WEXFORD County Board of Public Health received a claim at its meeting from Mr. L. O'Dea, solicitor, Galway, for compensation for the destruction of five parrots, the property of Patrick Margetto, William street, Galway, which were destroyed at Rosslare on May 21st last by the Board's medical officer. The parrots had been reared in Galway, and consigned to England, but were refused admission, and returned to this country, and on arrival at Rosslare were killed under the Parrots Act of 1930. Mr. M. J. Jordan, T.D., Chairman, said that the Board was not responsible, as it only carried out the law. The Board took no action.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Wednesday.

WHEAT was easy at the opening, and 1¼c. to 1½c. lower, due to the excellent harvesting weather in the South-West, and bearish private advices indicating that the yield in parts of Texas would average as high as twenty bushels per acre. A bearish construction was placed on a statement that the Farm Board does not intend to change functioning operations, and would not purchase surplus wheat unless an emergency arose. The weakness of the Stock Market was a further depressing factor. Later a partial recovery occurred owing to shorts covering, but the close was weak at 1½c. loss.

HOURS OF WORK IN COAL MINES.

BRITISH PROPOSAL DEFEATED.

GENEVA, Wednesday.

The Committee on hours of work in coal mines at its afternoon session rejected by 27 votes to 18 and three abstentions the British amendment proposing a seven and a half hour day. Thereupon Mr. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, entered a strong protest, declaring that in view of this vote it was useless having a convention. The Committee then adjourned until to-morrow morning, and the interval will be utilised to endeavour to reach a better result.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING

PITIABLE SIGHTS AT ASCOT.

THE MACNAB'S HUNT CUP VICTORY.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

ASCOT, Wednesday Night.

An ordinary imagination can hardly grasp the extraordinary happenings of this afternoon. The programme on the Hunt Cup day abandoned after only two races had been run, and the other five races of the afternoon dove-tailed into the programmes of Thursday and Friday, is something almost incomprehensible. But it has happened, and there was no other alternative to it, for the violence of the thunderstorm that burst over the meeting just after the Hunt Cup was run transcended all the limits of an ordinary English imagination.

F. DARLING.

It was devastating in its fury. The thunder roared and the forked lightning flashed, and the rain fell as I have never seen it fall before in England. The Royal enclosure and other enclosures were cleared instantaneously when the full fury of the storm burst. What had been a comparatively gay scene was transformed at once into one of desolation. Thousands upon thousands of beautiful frocks were ruined, utterly ruined, in a minute, and it was a sad multitude that made its way, as best it could, from the course about the hour of half-past three, when the storm had subsided, although the rain had not yet ceased.

The Ascot that we knew for so many years has been ruined, and it will be a chastened company that will assemble to-morrow, when there are ten races to be run for—surely the greatest feast of racing that has ever been offered to the British public.

A THREATENING MORNING.

There had been a thunderstorm in the morning, and there were ominous clouds and a highly-electrified atmosphere as we reached the course. The first race, the Coronation Stakes, was run through in the ordinary way, but soon after heavy rain set in. The mist rose over the course, and people began to prepare themselves for the worst, which they thought was just going to be a wet day. Then the thunder began to peal, and, amid fierce rumblings and flashes of forked lightning, the Royal Hunt Cup was run for minus the parade, abandoned on account of the rain.

The horses were only just unsaddled and on their way to their boxes when the full fury of the elements was vented on unfortunate Ascot. For nearly an hour bedraggled women in ruined frocks huddled together in such shelter as the stands and any possible form of cover afforded.

The runners went up for the Chesham Stakes, but neither horse nor man could venture into the paddock. To run the race was beyond all human possibility. Lakes formed in the paddock and in the enclosures, and on the low-lying parts of the course, and between three o'clock and half-past the Stewards met and decided to abandon the rest of the day's racing, and to run the postponed races to-morrow and Friday.

A HURRIED RETREAT.

Napoleon's retreat from Moscow was a poor sort of show compared with the retreat from Ascot to-day. Never has such a miserable collection of men, women, and girls, who had started out in the morning in all the glory of their finery, been seen as those who made their way as best they could to motor car or train to take them home.

Incidentally, the lightning struck and killed a bookmaker in Tattersall's Ring before he had paid out over the Hunt Cup. The only happy people on the course were the congenial welshers on the opposite side of the stands. For once in their lives they had an excuse for getting away without paying.

The Coronation Stakes was won, as I anticipated, by the Aga Khan's filly, Qurrat-al-Ain, the daughter of Buchan and Harpsichord, bred by Mr. James J. Maher, and sold at Doncaster as a yearling for 12,500 guineas. Hers was a most meritorious victory; for she was left several lengths at the post, and in the straight she was in grave danger of being shut out.

A LOSING SEQUENCE.

But Beary, who had ridden a sequence of fifty-one losers up to the opening of the day's racing, saw a possibility of an opening, and determined at all costs to secure it. He dashed her through, luck was with him; the gap opened out, and she came away to gain a good victory by a neck from Fly Leaf, with the French filly, Diademe, a length away, third, and the Oaks winner, Rose of England, fourth. The last-named started favourite, but she hung a lot in the course of the race. The Aga Khan was delighted with his success in this, one of the richest events of the meeting.

Then the rain began, and it was pouring so heavily that the parade for the Royal Hunt Cup was dispensed with. There was a good field for this, and Lionhearted, a French-bred colt, trained by Captain Bell for Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, started favourite from Ecilath, Lucky Tor and Six Wheeler. The mist had grown bad by the time the horses were on their way to the post, and it was impossible to see them. When they came into view the Macnab was in front, followed by the outsider, Lord Glanely's Grand Idol, Midlothian, Caballero, Fleeting Memory, Le Phare and Racedale.

A COMFORTABLE WIN.

The Macnab kept up his merry gallop, and finally he won comfortably by a length and half-a-length from Grand Idol and Lionhearted, with Fleeting Memory, who ran well, fourth; Lionidas fifth, Six Wheeler sixth, and Racedale seventh. Midlothian does not like the going as soft as it was, and he was done with at the end of six furlongs, as was Le Phare.

Lionhearted may have been a trifle unlucky; for he was badly drawn, and Wragg, in trying to find a better position, got into all sorts of trouble and was repeatedly baulked. He came late on the scene, but he was going great guns and travelling faster than anything else in the race. Guards' Parade and Songe were left at the post.

The Macnab made Fred Darling's fourth winner at the meeting. This is the colt who, when owned by the late Lord Dewar (who bequeathed him and his other horses to his nephew, Mr. J. A. Dewar), was so much fancied for the Cambridgeshire last year before he went wrong. He ran inconspicuously in the Jubilee, but he was much better handicapped here, and reversed the Kempton running with all the others.

THE GOLD CUP.

There can be no doubt that the going will be sticky to-morrow, for, especially at the junction of the courses, there were lakes when we left the meeting. There will be, after all, but a small field, numbering not more than half a dozen, for the Gold Cup. The soft ground may suit the French colt, Hotweed, for he likes it like that. I do not know whether Bosworth will get the distance in such conditions, but THE BASTARD is a sound stayer, who does not mind whether it is hard or soft, and I choose him to win.

It will be odd to have the routine of Ascot so disturbed that no fewer than four races will have been run before the Gold Cup is decided, instead of having it, as usual, the second race of the day, after the hour's luncheon interval.

OTHER SELECTIONS.

The Granville Stakes may be won by the Irish filly, CONFETTI, but she will meet with strong opposition from Scotford and Polar Bear. Costaki Pasha, in the Cork and Orrery Stakes, has on the book a few pounds in hand of REEDSMOUTH, but the latter has had two races this season, and his York performance was enhanced by the Manchester victory of Quatrain, so I take him to win. Cameronian will be absent from the New Stakes on account of sore shins, and this event may be won by CARMELUS.

GALTEE MORE.

THE IRISH DERBY.

CHRISTOPHER ROBIN TO RUN: SOL DE TERRE DOUBTFUL.

Lieutenant-Colonel Giles Loder's Christopher Robin, who won the St. James's Palace Stakes at Ascot on Tuesday, in which he beat, amongst other, Rustom Pasha and Iliad, will be sent over for the Irish Derby, to be run at the Curragh on Wednesday next. The Heath-trained Sol de Terre is suffering from soreness of the hip and will not be sent.

NAAS.

THE GRAND PRIZE.

The outstanding event on a strong all-round programme at Naas to-day is the Naas Grand Prize, and for this handsomely endowed event a field of twelve two-year-olds will go to the post. It should provide a very interesting race, in which the brunt of the battle may be borne by Double Arch, Ohoka, Greek Bandit, and, perhaps, Jehad. These read the pick of the exposed division. Early in the season Double Arch beat Ohoka a length at a difference of 4lb., whereas now the last-named has a pull of 16lb., and, granted that she is fit and well, this advantage in the weights should enable her to reverse the previous verdict, albeit she will have her work cut out to account for Double Arch and Greek Bandit, both of whom are decidedly smart.

A special train leaves Kingsbridge at 2 o'clock and returns at 6 o'clock. Selections are appended:—

ASCOT TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

TEN RACES ON THE CARD.

THE BASTARD FANCIED FOR THE GOLD CUP.

It is hoped that there will be no repetition of the wretched weather experienced on Hunt Cup day, for there is now a lengthy programme to be run through. Although the absence of Strephon II., Palais Royal II. and Ortello will rob the Ascot Gold Cup of some of its international aspect, this popular long-distance event will provide its usual keen struggle. The opposition from abroad looks less strong, and although there is some confidence behind Feb and Hotweed, I think the English-trained horses will be capable of holding them at bay. What will prove the best of them, however, is, indeed, a puzzle, for all four—Athford, Friendship, Bosworth and The Bastard—can be made out to possess chances. Many good judges at headquarters prefer The Bastard to Bosworth, chiefly because the latter has not been showing up so well in recent gallops. The hard ground has been all against him in his preparation, but after yesterday's deluge the going has become more yielding, and his prospects have become greatly improved.

The Bastard, who is bred to stay, being by Spion Kop and Valescure, gave proof of his usefulness when easily accounting for Dark Hillock and Highbury in the Yorkshire Cup last month, and he is undoubtedly a much-improved animal. Friendship, who has not been seen out since putting up such a game fight against West Wicklow in the Cesarewitch, has had a special preparation, but although he is just the sort to bring off a surprise, as a maiden five-year-old he lacks the necessary class. Athford is to take his chance, and although some goood judges think he is not quite so good as last year, he was a ready winner of the Doncaster Cup last September, giving The Bastard 5lb. and a hollow beating. However, as I know the last-named to be a greatly improved horse and tried to stay the distance, I shall look to him to beat Bosworth and win.

The Granville Stakes concerns some of our best sprinters, but the two I like best are Scotford and Polar Bear. The latter ran unplaced at Epsom, but I am certain he did not have the best of luck on that occasion, and I shall give him another chance. Kemmel, who represents F. Darling's stable in preference to Press Gang in the Rous Memorial Stakes, is expected to show considerable improvement on his last running. The older horses, however, look the best here, and I shall row in with Fuzzy Wuzzy, who always runs consistently well.

The Waterford Stakes will see Trews attempting to atone for his defeat in the Derby. He was a little unlucky then, and I shall expect him again to beat Grand Salute and Dick Swiveller. Teacup has not been seen out since last year, but is well. Rear Admiral maintains his form, and Wedding Favour will not be disgraced, but I think the best to rely on here is Trews.

There are several fancied in the New Stakes, but here I intend to go all out for Sordo, who, I hear, has improved a lot since he ran green when winning easily at York.

I shall give Costaki Pasha preference over Golden King and Reedsmouth in the Cork and Orrery Stakes, and Ghost Train should win the Ribblesdale Stakes.

I find no reason for altering my selections for the Bessborough, Churchill and Fern Hill Stakes, three of yesterday's postponed events which are included in to-day's card.

Bessborough Stakes—Eileandonan.
Churchill Stakes—Visellus.
Fern Hill Stakes—Stingo.
Granville Stakes—Polar Bear.
Gold Cup—The Bastard.
Rous Memorial Stakes—Fuzzy Wuzzy.
Waterford Stakes—Trews.
New Stakes—Sordo (nap).
Cork and Orrery Stakes—Costaki Pasha.
Ribblesdale Stakes—Ghost Train.

Diademe made the running, followed by Theresina and Sister Norah, and turning into the straight Diademe was in front of Theresina, Sister Norah and Rose of England, with Fly-leaf next and Qurrat-al-Ain beginning to make up her ground. Fly-leaf raced to the front about a furlong and a half from the post, followed by Rose of England, Qurrat-al-Ain, Micmac, Theresina and Torchere. Qurrat-al-Ain quickly closed with Fly-leaf, and gaining the mastery inside the distance won by a neck; one length separated second and third. Off at 2.35. (Winner trained by F. Darling.)

Betting—10 to 1 agst. Lion Hearted, 100 to 8 each Lucky Tor, Ecilath and Six Wheeler, 100 to 7 each THE MACNAB, Fleeting Memory and Le Phare, 100 to 6 each Songe, Guards' Parade, Midlothian and Racedale, 20 to 1 each Sidonia and Miss Linn, 25 to 1 N.P.B., 28 to 1 each Caballero and Grand Idol, 33 to 1 Pachalik, 40 to 1 any other. Place betting in proportion.

THE RACE.

The start was obscured, owing to rain and mist, and the colours were not discernible until half the journey had been covered. Grand Idol was the first into his stride, followed by Midlothian and The Macnab, but on coming clearly into view at the junction of the courses The Macnab was leading Grand Idol, Midlothian, Caballero, Miss Linn, Le Phare and Six Wheeler. Leonidas II. and Lion Hearted being the most conspicuous of the others. Midlothian dropped back beaten about a quarter of a mile from home, where The Macnab held command from Grand Idol and Fleeting Memory, who were followed by Caballero, Six Wheeler, Le Phare, Racedale, Lion Hearted, Barbizan and Leonidas II., closely bunched up. Continuing in front The Macnab held off Grand Idol and Lion Hearted (who deprived Fleeting Memory of third place in the last few strides) and won cleverly by one length; half a length separated second and third. Fleeting Memory was fourth, Leonidas II. fifth, Six Wheeler sixth, Racedale seventh, Barbizan eighth, Le Phare ninth, Pachalik tenth, Sidonia eleventh, Ecilath twelfth, Saint Nicolas II. thirteenth, Caballero fourteenth, N.P.B. fifteenth, Sargasso sixteenth, and Beachcomber last. Songe whipped round at the start and turned the reverse way, and Guards' Parade was left. No time was taken owing to the mist.

FURTHER RACING ABANDONED.

In consequence of the storm, the Stewards abandoned racing for the day after the Royal Hunt Cup. Three of the five remaining events—the Bessborough Stakes, the Churchill Stakes, and the Fern Hill Stakes—will be run to-day; and the other two—the King Edward Stakes and the Chesham Stakes—will be run to-morrow.

CLAREMORRIS

DOUBLE FOR MR. FRED CLARKE.

CREDO DISQUALIFIED.

The weather was very pleasant at Claremorris yesterday, when, although the sun shone brightly, it was not so oppressively hot as had been the case on the previous day at Roscommon. The card yielded some very interesting sport, in which, however, backers of favourites only fared moderately. The total tote pool for the day was £610 12s.

Good Thing successfully shouldered her penalty for winning at Gowran Park in the Mayo Hurdle Handicap, in which she made the whole of the running to win by five lengths from Thistle Lass.

Odds were laid on Atlantic Flier beating her solitary opponent, Credo, in the Town Hurdle. Leading throughout, however, Credo finished a length and a half in front of the favourite. The winner did not keep a straight course from the last flight, and an objection for interference, which followed, proved fatal, the race being awarded to Atlantic Flier.

As rider and trainer, Mr. Fred Clarke accomplished a double by winning the County Plate with Elsworth. Rathcannon and Gogar were the more fancied, but Rathcannon bolted before a mile had been covered, and although Gogar was in front at the entrance to the straight, he failed to resist the challenge of Elsworth, whose third success it was this season.

The outsider of the party of five proved successful in the race for the Claremorris Plate. Absent Denis, who had been preferred in the betting, flattered his supporters to the last fence, where Lare, well ridden by her owner, slipped into the lead to win a good race by a couple of lengths. Another favourite was beaten when Run Off failed in the Railway Handicap, which Vagabond King, who had run in a steeplechase at Roscommon on the previous day, won cleverly. When Run Off took up the running at half-way all seemed plain sailing for Mr. Parkinson's three-year-old, but Vagabond King showed the better spirit at the end. Shoplifter did backers a good turn by proving successful in the Commercial Steeplechase. Details:—

MOTOR CYCLING

GUTHRIE WINS LIGHT-WEIGHT T.T.

IRISH RIDER SECOND.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

DOUGLAS, Wednesday.

After Ireland's victory in Monday's race, yesterday was Scotland's day in the Isle of Man. The Light-Weight Tourist Trophy was won by A. J. Guthrie (Hawick), who covered the 264 miles at an average speed of 64.71 miles per hour, approximately a tenth of a mile slower than last year's record. Second place was filled by Charles Johnston (Cork), whose average speed was two-thirds of a mile slower. An Englishman, E. A. Barrow, was third.

The fastest lap of the race was won by Handley on a Rex Acme. On his second circuit he beat Ghersi's record of last year by 7 seconds, doing 65.86 miles an hour. This was the only record broken during the race, which was surprising in view of the fact that the race was run under ideal conditions, with brilliant sunshine and almost a flat calm.

A feature of the race was the manner in which the fancied cracks went out in the early stages. One by one they retired with mechanical trouble, and before half of the race was over it was clear that less than half of the thirty starters would finish. Sarkis, the South African representative, led for the first two laps, but meeting with engine trouble, retired after the third lap. Guthrie was sixth on the first lap, fourth on the second, and taking the lead on the third circuit, was not afterwards headed, winning by 2 minutes 26 seconds, after a no trouble run.

It was a bad day for overseas riders. Lind (South Africa) being one of the seven starters to finish. The first lap ended with three overseas riders inside the first four. Sarkis led Handley by 36 secs., Franconi being third, Hall fourth, Crabtree fifth, and Guthrie sixth, 66 secs. covering the first half doz. The end of the second circuit saw the leaders still closer together, 42 secs. embracing the sextette. Sarkis still led, beating Ghersi's lap record of last year by 7 secs., Handley got within 6 secs. of the South African. Franconi was still third, and Guthrie moved into fourth place, Johnston and Barrow coming into fifth and sixth positions.

Handley had not gone far on the third lap when a burst oil tank compelled him to retire. Hall (South Africa) and Crabtree, holder of the trophy, also retired by this time. Sarkis stopped to refuel at the end of the second lap, and this loss of time, coupled with the fast lap by Guthrie, enabled the latter to take the lead by 21 seconds from Sarkis. Johnston came into third place and Barrow became fourth.

Two new names now appeared on the leader board, Emery and Mellors coming into fifth and sixth place. Porter (Edinburgh) now joined the retirals with a broken petrol pipe, and Longman, another ex-holder of the trophy, gave up with engine trouble. Guthrie finished his fourth lap with a lead of 3 mins. 26 secs., and Sarkis, having to stop for adjustments, dropped out of the picture. Barrow was now second, Johnston third, Lind fifth and Mellors sixth.

On the fifth circuit Guthrie led by over 4 mins. Johnston passed Barrow and moved into second place. Guthrie, however, had to stop to refill, and this loss of time resulted in his entering on the final lap with the reduced lead of 2 mins. 44 secs. Although Johnston was the faster of the two in the last circuit, he could not overtake the Scotsman, who ran out winner by 2 mins. 26 secs.

GOLF.

THREE RETURNS OF SEVENTY.

R. T. JONES SMASHES HOYLAKE "RECORD."

BRITISH OPEN THRILLS,

HOYLAKE, Wednesday.

The first day's play in the Open Championship proper was crowded with thrilling golf and dramatic incidents, and an intensely interesting situation exists at the end of the first round. Mr. "Bobby" Jones, Henry Cotton, the young Langley Park professional, and Macdonald Smith, a Scottish golfer who has lived for 20 years in America, tied for the leadership at 70; while Fred. Robson, an Englishman, and Jim Barnes, a Cornishman, who won the title five years ago, are only one stroke behind. The players who went out immediately after lunch went through, for the most part, in a heavy thunderstorm, but Compson, who was one of the last to drive off, was fortunate in having excellent conditions throughout his round. The magnet Mr. Jones is to the crowd was shown by the great company which followed him from his inauspicious start to his glorious finish of an amazing round, which, although it did not give him full leadership at the end of the day, placed the amateur record of the Royal Liverpool links to his credit. The previous record was 73.

PERFECT PUTTING.

Jones pulled his drive to the second, but from that point the mechanism of this golfing machine worked perfectly. He nearly had two's at the short 4th and 7th, for at both his tee shots were four yards from the hole. Out in 36, he had a three at the 10th, where he holed a six-yarder, and a three at the long and difficult 17th, where he ran down a putt of ten yards. Up to the time the American finished the best return was by Fred. Robson at 71, and then a violent thunderstorm approached from the Welsh hills.

TRYING CONDITIONS.

Horton Smith, Henry Cotton and McDonald Smith were all well out on the course when the vivid lightning and drenching rain began, and it was considered impossible for Jones's 70 to be approached. Then Cotton, even in the height of the storm, played perfect golf. He never made a slip until the sixteenth. He was bunkered off his second shot to the next three holes. The sixteenth and eighteenth cost him 5, but he had gone round in the worst weather of all, and his golf may be accepted as the best performance.

Compston, after an indifferent start, maintained a general level of excellence during the middle of his round, and finished in 74. One of the tragedies of the day was that of George Duncan, who had two 8's on his card and finished in 85, which has probably put him out of another championship.

IRISHMEN PROMINENT.

The Irish representatives did quite well, and all of them are within striding distance of the leaders. Mr. D. E. B. Soulby holds the distinction of being the leading British amateur with a round of 75. He played almost faultless golf for the first nine holes, being out in 36. At the tenth he pulled his iron shot, and was in such a bad place that he was lucky to escape with a five. He took 6 at the sixteenth, where he was bunkered, and three putts on the eighteenth green; but, in spite of these errors, he came home in 39. Major C. O. Hezlet also did well with a round of 79, after he had taken 42 for the first nine holes. He started with three 5's, his second shots being at fault, although in the rain during the afternoon the course played much longer, and 4's were not easy at either of these holes. Then he had a 6 at the fifth, where he had an unlucky kick into a bunker, so that he had to play the remaining holes well to get out in 42. He played really well for his homeward score of 37, and there was not a serious error during the second nine.

MAJOR HEZLET.

MR. D. E. SOULBY.

NOLAN'S MISFORTUNE.

Hugh McNeill, who played a round of 78, unfortunately blundered at the third and took 6, and at the seventeenth he had a similar figure. He had equal halves of 39, and the best shot of the round was at the ninth, where he hit a second shot to within two yards of the pin. Sid Fairweather, of Malone, took 77. He began well, and had the fine score of one under fours for the first five holes, but at the seventh and eight sent his ball into the rough, and each of these holes cost him 5, while at the ninth he missed a two yards putt and another 5 went on his card. He reached the turn in 38, however, and coming home he had several chances of birdie figures, but putts of two or three yards would not go down. He came home in 39, and finished only three shots behind his partner, Leo Diegel.

W. Nolan, of Portmarnock, had two equal halves of 39 in his round of 78. He was unfortunate to have such an indifferent score, because he played really well in a heavy thunderstorm and controlled the ball beautifully through the green, but on the greens he dropped several strokes and missed some short putts.

The returns were as under:—

THE ATHLETIC CRUX.

THE N.A.C.A. AND ULSTER CLUBS.

The recent pronouncement of the A.A.A. relative to the position of the Northern Ireland Amateur Athletic and Cross-country Association in Irish athletics and the suspension by that body of athletes affiliated to the N.A. and C.A. of Ireland forms an interesting topic of conversation among Irish athletic officials.

The following letter has been sent to the Ulster clubs in affiliation with it by the Standing Committee of the N.A.C.A.:—

"18th June, 1930.

"DEAR SIR,—The attention of the Standing Committee of the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland has been drawn to a statement printed in the Belfast Telegraph of June 4th, 1930, purporting to be signed by Mr. Herbert Neill. It appears to be an attempt to intimidate athletes and clubs in Northern Ireland into recognising the authority of the Northern Ireland Amateur Athletic and Cross-country Association by a gross mis-statement of the international position as regards the control of athletics in that area.

"The 'Handbook of the International Amateur Athletic Federation' shows in the list of members of the Federation: 'Ireland, National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland.' No alteration in the status of the National Athletic and Cycling Association has been considered or proposed by the Federation since the admission of Ireland many years ago. At the recent Congress of the Federation at Berlin Ireland was represented by the President of the National Athletic and Cycling Association, who was registered as the representative of Ireland. No question was raised as to his authority, and when votes were taken he was called on as 'Ireland,' and his vote recorded as 'Ireland.' Had the representatives of the Amateur Athletic Association desired to question his status they had ample opportunity to do so.

"It is to be noted also that in the handbook and other documents of the Federation the Amateur Athletic Association appears as the representative Association for 'Great Britain' only, and not, as Mr. Neill suggests, for the 'United Kingdom.'

"In its recent attempted intrusion into Ireland, the Amateur Athletic Association is acting in defiance of one of the fundamental rules of the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Rule 7 states:—

> "Associations affiliated with the Federation shall acknowledge each other as the only legislative authorities for athletics in the respective countries, and as the only organisations authorised to regulate international agreements in athletics."

"Moreover, in purporting to commit the control of athletics in Northern Ireland to the Northern Ireland Association the Amateur Athletic Association is acting in breach of the constitution of the International Amateur Athletic Association in that the latter only recognises amateur bodies, and the Northern Association, in so far as it admits professional football clubs as constituent members, can not be regarded as an amateur body.

"The international position at the moment is:—(1) The only governing body recognised by the International Amateur Athletic Federation for Ireland is the National Athletic and Cycling Association. (2) The intrusion of the Amateur Athletic Association is irregular, ultra vires, and in defiance of its obligations to the International Amateur Athletic Association. (3) Its decisions as regards athletics in Northern Ireland are not binding on other members of the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

"It is hardly necessary to add that it is for the athletes and clubs of Northern Ireland to decide whether they will submit to be transferred against their will to a jurisdiction distasteful to them, or retain the full international status they now possess, rather than seek a status by the grace of the Amateur Athletic Association, for, as Mr. Neill rightly points out, the Amateur Athletic Association denies to Northern Ireland both separate entity and international status.

"I am, yours very truly,

"Signed, JAMES J. McGILTON,

"Hon. Secretary."

LORD BURGHLEY FOR DUBLIN.

The Committee of the Tramway Sports have secured an entry for their annual fixture from Lord Burghley, whose record breaking effort at Stamford Bridge this year, stamps him as the world's greatest hurdler. At the Tramway sports next month he will be given the opportunity of lowering both Irish hurdles records, as the promoting body are putting on both 120 yards and 440 yards hurdles.

D.M.G. WIN AT MANCHESTER.

Manchester City Police Sports were held at Fallowfield, Manchester, yesterday, but a violent thunderstorm and heavy rain adversely affected the attendance and performances. Dublin athletes were conspicuous among the winners being P. Connolly (D.M.G.), who won the furlong off eight yards. The D.M.G. won the 1,000 yards relay, and seconds were obtained by L. Meagher (Dublin) in the half-mile handicap off 24 yards; and G. Walsh (Dublin) in the hammer-throw and shot-putting, while D. McAlinden obtained third in the open 100 yards off six yards.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE DRAW FOR WIMBLEDON.

COCHET AND TILDEN AT OPPOSITE ENDS.

MRS. MOODY AND MISS JACOBS STEER CLEAR.

In the presence of Mr. E. Dailey, the President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, W. T. Tilden, Mr. F. E. Duxon, the manager of the American Davis Cup team, and Dr. Prenn, the German player, the draw was made for the Lawn Tennis Championships at the All-England Club, Wimbledon, yesterday.

The draw has placed W. T. Tilden and Henri Cochet, the holder in opposite halves of the men's singles, so that there is a prospect of these two meeting yet again in the final. Cochet has to meet H. Timmer, the Dutchman, in the first round, while Tilden is to oppose the veteran Indian Davis Cup player, Dr. A. F. Fyzee.

The "seeded" players in this event are:—H. Cochet (France) (holder), W. T. Tilden (U.S.A.), J. Borotra (France), J. H. Doeg (U.S.A.), G. M. Lott (U.S.A.), H. W. Austin (Great Britain), H. L. de Morpurgo (Italy), and E. F. Moon (Australia).

In the womens' singles the holder, Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, receives a bye into the second round, but Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish girl, is in the same half, so that there is no possibility of a final between these two players.

W. T. TILDEN.

MRS. WILLS MOODY.

The Spanish player will meet Miss Sarah Palfrey, the young American player, in the first round, while Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall has to oppose Mrs. L. G. Owen. One of the most interesting matches in the first round will be that between Mrs. Holcroft Watson, Britain's No. 1 woman player, and Miss Betty Nuthall. Mrs. Watson is in the other half from Mrs. Moody. Fraulein Cilly Aussem, the German champion, who also received a bye into the second round, has been drawn against Miss Bower; while last year's finalist, Miss Helen Jacobs, of America, will oppose Mrs A. H. Mellows in the second round.

The "seeded" players in the womens' singles are:—Mrs. Wills-Moody (U.S.A.) (holder), Mrs. Holcroft Watson, Miss Helen Jacobs, Senorita L. de Alvarez, Madame Mathieu, Fraulein Cilly Aussem, Miss P. Mudford and Miss E. Ryan.

THE DRAW.

ROWING.

THE BOYNE REGATTA.

THRILLING FINISHES.

It was not until the last race was being rowed that there was the least sign of rain at Drogheda yesterday.

Not for many years has the Committee of the Boyne Regatta been so fortunate as on this occasion. It was a lovely day for oarsmen and spectators, and we had some thrilling finishes, in one of which the local Senior eight distinguished itself by a victory over Dublin University.

This was in the first heat of the I.A.R.U. Cup between Drogheda, Shannon, and Trinity. It was a gruelling struggle from a perfect start to the gun, there being never more than a canvas between the three boats to about three hundred yards from the finish, with the University and Shannon leading alternately. Drogheda, rowing a brilliant finish, won by half a length from Trinity in the good time of 5 mins. 37 3-5 secs., the University crew making a tremendous burst in the last couple of hundred yards or so.

Immediately Trinity lodged a protest, on the ground that they had been fouled by Shannon, but the objection was overruled. The oar of stroke in the Trinity boat certainly was damaged; but only those close up were in a position to judge which crew was to blame. Anyway, the "incident" was the only blot on a grand day's sport, and one of the finest races seen on the Boyne for years, and while it may have had some bearing on the result the fact remained that Drogheda rowed a splendid race, and had nothing whatever to do with the mix up.

In the second heat Citie of the Tribes also rowed magnificently, getting down to it in great style, and working in almost perfect rhythm to beat City of Derry easily by three lengths. The time was slower than Drogheda's (5 mins. 52 secs.); but they were not pressed to the same extent, and it should be a rare set-to between Drogheda and the Galway men to-day.

Drogheda also survived their heats in the Cairnes Cup (senior fours), and Aspirants Cup (maiden eights).

Dublin University had their share of the honours of the day, getting through the Maiden Cup (fours), the Drogheda (senior fours), and the Boyne (junior fours), but in the senior race they were hard set to resist a resolute challenge by City of Derry, the margin being half a length. The Portadown junior four sprung a surprise in the Boyne by defeating Belfast Commercial and Drogheda, and in the Aspirants Neptune's two crews were successful.

The order of the races for to-day is:—2 o'c., Fishermens; 2.30, Maiden Cup; 3 o'c., Cairnes Cup; 3.30, Drogheda Cup; 4 o'c., Corporation Cup; 4.30, Boyne Cup; 5 o'c., Senior Sculls; 5.30, Aspirants Cup; 6 o'c., I.A.R.U. Cup; 6.20, Kelly Cup.

YACHTING.

EARLY MORNING FINISHES AT KINGSTOWN.

On both days late finishes, or rather early morning finishes, were recorded at Kingstown Regatta. On the first day two races finished between 2 and 3 a.m. This was surpassed on the second day, when finality was not reached until after 5 a.m. in one instance.

This was in the handicap for yachts over 5 and not exceeding 15 tons, in which Espanola, Punctilio, Sheevra, Mavis, and Margaret started at 2.30 p.m. One by one they gave up, until only Punctilio and Mavis were left in. They had a dreary time in the Bay, kedged one moment and sailing the next. Punctilio got in long before the other, and the gun she received awakened the harbour. Long afterwards Mavis arrived, and her timing must be nearly a record for lateness in the case of the Kingstown Regatta. The official finish was:—

	H.	M.	S.
Punctilio (winner)—Messrs. Newsom and Stephens (8 mins.)	2	38	30
Mavis (2nd prize)—Mr. J. B. Kearney (21 mins.)	5	11	27

The finishes of two other races were accidentally omitted from yesterday's report of the R.I.Y.C. Regatta. But, first of all, a correction has to be made as regards what was published for the 17-Footers. In yesterday's report Echo was returned as having finished fourth. Actually she finished first, and the return of the race should have read:—

	H.	M.	S.
Echo (winner)—Mr. R. Hall	6	28	48
Pauline (2nd prize)—Dr. H. J. Wright	7	12	9
Bobolink (3rd prize)—Mr. A. McMullen	7	15	9
Leila—Mr. W. MacBride	7	27	25
Deilginis—Captain O'Brien Twohig	7	31	0

Anita and Mimosa gave up.

The races which were omitted were:—

MATCH for Clontarf Y. and B.C. Sailboats. Start 3.45. Finish:

	H.	M.	S.
Sunshine (3rd prize)—Mr. C. Sargeant (scr.)	7	49	20

Finola (winner)—Mr. J. Tancred (11 mins.)	7	56	46
May Mischief—Mr. J. Ricard (2 mins.)	8	1	2
Falcon—Messrs. Paine and Hutchinson (2 mins.)	8	7	3
Montana—Mr. A. Browne (5 mins.)	8	8	27

Ranger gave up.

MATCH for 12ft. Dinghies. Start 4.15 p.m. Finish:

	H.	M.	S.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

NOTES FOR INVESTORS.

EXCEPTIONAL WEAKNESS.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)
59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
Wednesday.

It is a long time since Stock markets were so depressed as they were in the early part of this week. The reason generally given for this was the fresh break in Wall street, but it is doubtful if this was the main cause of the depression. For a long time past there has been very little support on public account, outside the market for choice investment securities, and when any moderate amount of stock has been offered the dealers have marked down prices. There has also been some bear selling, but there has also been a considerable amount of liquidation, and from its character there would appear to be some ground for the rumours of financial difficulties, both inside and outside the Stock Exchange. The fresh weakness of New York has served to accentuate the effect of the fall in purely British securities, caused by a variety of adverse circumstances.

A Cause of Depression.

Probably the explanation of the acute depression, apart from the influence of New York, is that investors, large and small, have suffered very severe losses through the great fall in certain securities, such as Royal Mail, Steam Cables and Wireless, Gramophones, Textiles, Home, Argentine and Brazilian Rails and all Australian securities. Something in the nature of a vicious circle has been at work, for the effect of adverse influences has been cumulative. Broadly speaking, prices now stand at a level which only a few months ago would have been regarded as attractive, but nobody is induced to buy, fearing that there will be a fresh decline, and the mere absence of buying accelerates the downward trend of prices. The turn will come some day, but it is difficult to see when this will be, and large numbers of investors and speculators are now faced with serious losses, which may involve further liquidation before there is a real recovery.

America's Troubles.

Those who take the view that the operation of the new tariff in America will affect the export trade of that country are probably not far wrong. Immediately after the memorable slump of November last, the authorities on the other side considered every promising measure of a nature likely to restore public confidence, and for a time confident views were expressed that the reaction in the prosperity of the States would be only temporary, to be followed by a fresh expansion of business. In this the experts were disappointed. The trade of America has not recovered from the check that it received last year, and, if the views of economists are correct, the present is the most unsuitable time at which America could have passed a measure for increasing the tariff against foreign imports. It is essential, for the country's prosperity, that the foreign trade should be encouraged and increased.

War Debts and Foreign Trade.

The position is aggravated by the fact that several countries owe money to America, and the new tariff means that they will find it still more difficult, if not impossible, to pay America and at the same time buy what America wants to sell. It would seem, therefore, that, unless the country alters this new tariff by making it easier for foreign goods to enter, it must lend to Europe on a larger scale than hitherto. But this alternative is not satisfactory. It is merely postponing the real payment of debts, while it increases the burden of America's debtors, owing to the increase in the amount payable for interest on the loans. As the latest break in Wall street was mainly attributed to the fear that the new tariff would be duly signed by the President, it is evident that this view is shared on the other side.

Share Valuations.

It seems likely that one result of recent events will be that in future Industrial Ordinary shares will be valued on a higher yield basis than has been the case hitherto. In varying degree this applies both to American and English shares. As an example, General Electrics may be taken. During last year the price went to 4 1/16; it is true that the advance then was due to purchases by American interests for the purpose of obtaining control, an attempt that was frustrated by the action of the Board. At 4 1/16 the yield from the 10 per cent. dividend then customary was less than 2½ per cent. This meant that the expected increase in earnings over the next four or five years, or even a longer period, had been discounted. General Electric is an extreme case, and this particular company may increase its profits still further, but the check to the industrial prosperity of the world, of which the serious fall in commodity prices is a symptom, will mean that the natural expansion of profits of industrial corporations will also be checked. If further money should become dearer the yields hitherto afforded by the leading industrial shares will not be considered good enough. Many shares are more reasonably valued now than they were during the active times of 1928-29, but if the expansion of profits has stopped for the time being it is most unlikely that prices will recover to the previous high level.

Commodity Prices and Security Values.

In regard to railway securities, it is more difficult to speak. The world-wide set-back to commercial prosperity is being reflected in traffic receipts, which in some cases are appallingly bad. Dividends must be reduced, and holders of the securities must exercise the virtue of patience. How long the black cloud will hang over the market it is impossible to say. The first signs of recovery will come with a decided and lasting improvement in the commodity market; for the more the matter is studied the closer appears to be the connection between commodity prices and Stock Exchange security values. What is now being witnessed is something in the nature of a repetition of the conditions which obtained as a result of the various untoward events of last year, such as the slump in New York and the Hatry crisis. The more speculative securities have fallen very severely, and in order to meet the heavy losses involved it is necessary to sell things that can be disposed of without unduly lowering the prices. Hence we have lately seen weakness in insurance shares, bank issues and various miscellaneous descriptions that are not directly influenced by the fresh collapse in Wall street.

The Monetary Situation.

So much have markets been influenced by other causes that the altered aspect of the money market has not attracted much attention, but it is an additional factor in the situation. It means that markets are no longer buoyed up by the possibilities of still cheaper money, although it may be a bull point that because of the change in the situation there is now much less prospect of a big Government debt conversion scheme. In the circumstances, the leading investment stocks have shown commendable steadiness. Prices have eased off somewhat, but not to a substantial extent, while the fact that English Corporation stocks almost daily provide at least a few instances of improvement indicates that investors are not completely frightened out of the markets, though it may be that buying of these and of 5 per Cent. Conversion and 5 per Cent. War Loan is dictated by the adoption of safety first principles at a time of distrust.

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN QUIETLY IRREGULAR.

GUINNESS RALLY.

Prices of public securities became more settled, and with a little support tempted into the market by the severity of the set-back improved quotations more often than not obtained. The recovery in Guinness units, though limited, helped the general sentiment of the current market in other directions as well. The Funds, all over, were supported, with a few irregular fluctuations. Corporation issues and the new National Government Loan were bid for. Banks scarcely altered. British and Irish Steam Pref. were harder, and a rally was indicated in Cables and Wireless Stocks. Easier prices obtained for Railway Pre-Ord. Stocks on profit-taking sales, and Dublin United Trams record a further set-back. Alliance Gas Shares were steadier. Trusts, Bakery and Drapery issues were neglected. Coats were the turn harder finally after the recent weakness, while Courtaulds rallied well. Imperial Tobaccos and Unilevers show a recovery, but Dunlops and Chemicals seemed disposed to ease further.

LONDON MORE CHEERFUL.

GILT-EDGED STEADY.

Although the volume of dealings put through in the London Stock markets yesterday remained on a small scale, rather more cheerful conditions were apparent, there being a cessation of the liquidation which has characterised markets recently, whilst the international issues, after fresh weakness at the opening, improved during the later hours. There was also evidence in certain directions of a little bear covering in view of the settlement, and this tended to accentuate the upward trend of values. Among recent issues the German Reparation Loan fell to 2 discount at one time, but later rallied smartly.

Rather firmer conditions prevailed in the Gilt-edged section, but the final levels showed little movement. Foreign Government Stocks also presented a steady to firm appearance, with only a small business passing. Home Rails remained out of favour, but, with a couple of trifling exceptions, the final quotations were the same as at the previous close. Colonial and Foreign Rails, on the other hand, suffered fresh depreciations in several instances, the Buenos Ayres issues, "Canpacs" and Antofagastas being heavy spots. American Rails rallied during the late hours and registered substantial improvements here and there. Although there was no material expansion in the volume of business passing in the Industrial sections, as a whole decidedly firmer conditions were apparent.

RAYON MARKET.

BUSINESS BROADENING OUT.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)
MANCHESTER, Wednesday.

The market for artificial silk fabrics shows signs of broadening out. This applies only to the home trade. Buyers are now showing a tendency to operate further ahead. Several good lines of all artificial silk dress goods, chiefly crepes and voiles have been booked. Printed fabrics and high class mixture goods have also been in more active request, and a healthy trade has been arranged in linings of various kinds, but corset and furnishing cloths have been neglected.

Both Canada and New Zealand have been fairly active operators. India is shaping badly. Fresh inquiries have been received for fancy bordered dhooties, lenos, brocades and fancies, but actual sales have been for very trifling quantities.

South America and Egypt have made isolated purchases and a few modest transactions in specialities have been arranged for West Africa.

Best quality viscose yarns have sold more freely, but stocks of low grade viscose are still oppressive and prices are poor.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

MORE HOPEFUL FEELING.

IMPROVEMENT IN GUINNESS.

Although values moved in rather irregular fashion in most sections of the Industrial market yesterday, a more hopeful feeling was abroad. Afternoon advices from New York proved uncertain, and after some lusty bidding was heard in the early "street" dealings a change in sentiment occurred.

Brazilian Traction Common fluctuated between 39 and 41½, eventually finishing at 40⅞, with Nickels closing at 22¾ after being 22 and 23½.

Cables and Wireless stocks strengthened at first, only to react later, the "A" Ord. closing at 36½ after 38½, the "B" at 16½ after 18, and the Pref. at 87 after 88.

The "Record" leaders proved uncertain in their movements, Columbia Graphophones finishing in the "street" at 3 5/16 after being 3⅞ earlier in the day. H.M.V.'s were comparatively steady around 3¾.

Several Motor shares had a steadier appearance. Leylands improved 2s. 6d. to 67s. 6d. and Dennis 1s. 6d. to 39s. 9d.

Electricals proved lower where changed. Coal and Engineering descriptions showed no decided trend.

Unilevers had a better appearance and closed 1/16 up on balance at 2½ after being rather higher. The new Ords. also enjoyed more attention than of late, and after changing hands up to 6s. finished with a gain of 6d. at 5s. 6d. International Teas advanced 6d. to 24s., and Lovell and Christmas recovered 1/16 to ⅜.

Rayons and Textiles moved within narrow limits and showed little variation on balance. Courtaulds met with some inquiry and improved, and American Celanese Common recovered to 4⅛, but Canadian Celanese gave way fractionally to 1⅞.

Of the Textile leaders, J. and P. Coats were a trifle harder at 57s. 3d., with Bleachers, Bradfords, Sewing Cottons, Fine Spinners, Calico Printers and Listers all unaltered.

Under the lead of Guinness, which strengthened 1s. to 101s., the Brewery department had a harder appearance. Bass Ord. had buyers at 64s. 9d., City of London Defd. at 12s. 6d., and Distillers at 65s. 9d.

Tobaccos seemed rather undecided in their movements, though buyers came forward for Carreras "A" at 7⅞, "Bats" at 5 5/16 and "Imps" at 4 15/16.

Welcome features in the Banking section were improvements of a point of Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking at 106½, and in National of Egypt at 29. In the Insurance department, Sun Insurance were scaled down ¼ to 36¾.

Among Shipping issues, Cunards and P. and O. Defd. met with moderate support, the former leaving off 3d. to the good at 20s. 3d., and the latter 6d. higher at 43s. Royal Mail issues showed no alteration, following the annual meeting.

Kreuger and Toll and Swedish Match enjoyed a small recovery, the former moving up ⅛ to 27⅞, and the latter ⅛ to 14⅞. United Molasses had a firmer appearance, being dealt in up to 51s., although they finished with a slight recession at 2 15/16.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Tate and Lyle Debs. recovered to 103, but Niger Co. Debs. weakened ¼ to ½ dis. Philips Glow Lamps were finally called 1s. better at 57s., after being 58s. in the earlier dealings. A moderate business took place in Roan Antelope Copper Debs. in the neighbourhood of 21.

OIL SHARES QUIET.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Oil Share market yesterday. Very little demand existed for either the leaders or speculative favourites, but at the same time there was no pronounced selling pressure in any direction. Prices of the leading counters were inclined to harden at one period, but they finished with an irregular appearance, dulness at the end being attributable to the fact that New York came in easier. The Miscellaneous issues also displayed an irregular appearance, whilst the margins usually were small.

RUBBER SHARES FIRMER.

While the volume of business transacted in the Rubber Share market showed no material expansion, distinctly firmer conditions prevailed, and the few movements recorded were mostly favourable to holders. A firmer tendency was also manifest in the commodity market during the early hours, but quotations slipped back again later, and closed much the same as on Tuesday. Thus spot and June went from 6⅛d. to 6 3/16d. per pound and July to September from 6 5/16d. to 6½d. per pound, while October to December fetched 6⅝d. per pound.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

JOHN BROWN AND COMPANY.

At an extraordinary general meeting of John Brown and Company, Ltd., which was held in London yesterday, the special resolutions relating to the scheme of arrangement were unanimously passed.

J. AND E. ATKINSON.

At the general meeting of J. and E. Atkinson, the perfumery and soap manufacturers, to be held on July 11th, proposals will be placed before the shareholders to the effect that 65,000 of the unissued Preference shares of £1 shall be cancelled and that the capital shall be increased to its former amount of £450,000 by the creation of 65,000 new Ordinary shares of £1. The authorised capital of £450,000 is at present divided into 150,000 6 per cent., tax free, Cumulative Preference shares of £1, of which 50,000 are in issue, and 300,000 Ordinary shares of £1, all of which are issued.

MOVE TO HELP RUBBER INDUSTRY.

A Reuter's message of yesterday from Singapore says:—The Federal Malay States' Government proposes to appropriate 2,500,000 dollars from the special reserve fund for expenditure on experimental research and propaganda work, for the general benefit of the rubber industry. A special board will be created, representative of the industry, to receive applications for assistance and to make recommendations.

CONTROL OF GAUMONT BRITISH.

Lord Lee of Fareham, in a statement issued last night, says:—"My attention has been drawn to various statements to which considerable publicity has been given, to the effect that the control of the Gaumont British Picture Corporation, Ltd., has passed into the hands of the Fox Film Corporation of America. There is no truth in this statement, which is sufficiently disproved by the fact that the Metropolis and Bradford Trust Co., Ltd., of which I am the permanent chairman, owns in its right over three millions out of the five millions Ordinary Shares of the Gaumont British Picture Corporation, and thus holds the control by a substantial voting majority. Moreover, the constitution of the Metropolis and Bradford Trust Co. and my appointment as its chairman were specifically designed to ensure and preserve British control, and there is no intention of surrendering this control to any foreign interest."

CARMELITE TRUST.

A circular to shareholders of Carmelite Trust states that since the date of the last annual general meeting, in June, 1929, the directorate has undergone extensive changes, including the retirement of the chairman, Mr. H. S. Horne, in November last. The two remaining directors have invited Sir J. R. P. Newman to occupy a seat on the board, and are pleased to announce his acceptance. The appointment of additional directors is under consideration, and will be governed by negotiations which are now in progress regarding certain of the company's assets. The following summary of the company's position, subject to audit, as at the 30th April last, is given:—Assets—Quoted investments cost £1,203,938, at market value £584,430; unquoted investments cost £23,030; loans partly secured, £536,150; sundry debtors, etc., £810; cash, £4,759; total, £1,149,179; less liabilities, excluding share capital loans, £501,560; sundry creditors, £20,901 (£522,461); surplus, £626,718.

TAYLORS CASH CHEMISTS TRUST.

The report for the year ended 31st March, 1930, state:—The balance shown by the revenue account, after providing for secretarial and other expenses, directors' fees and income tax, amounts to £78,344; add balance brought forward from last year, £13,234, making £91,578, from which must be deducted dividends on the preferred ordinary shares, paid and accrued, to the 31st March, 1930, less tax, £52,662; interim dividend on the deferred ordinary shares of 10 per cent., less tax £9,600, £62,662, leaving a balance of £29,316, which the directors recommend should be appropriated as follows:—To reserve account £10,000, in payment of a final dividend on the deferred ordinary shares of 10 per cent, less tax, making, with the interim dividend already paid, a total dividend for the year of 20 per cent., less tax, £9,300, £19,300, leaving a balance forward of £10,016. The fall in the net revenue for the year ended 31st March, 1930, amounting to £36,081, as compared with the previous year, is mainly accounted for by profits on sales of investments during the year under review realising some £30,000 less than last year.

As compared with last year the value of wool is 30 per cent. lower than last year.

LONDON MINING MARKET BRIGHTER.

KAFFIRS IN BETTER TRIM.

Although there was no great increase in the volume of trading, there was some professional and inside support for certain speculative securities, and among these Mines took on a brighter appearance. Kaffirs were helped by the dividend announcements, which were up to expectations, and which in the circumstances were regarded as quite satisfactory. Consequently the list presented a much better appearance, and although the improvements were small individually, they were fairly numerous. A distinct turn for the better was witnessed in the Rhodesian department, and a good inquiry sprang up for several of the Northern issues. Final prices were not in all cases the best of the day, but in some cases were still appreciably higher. The price of tin rallied nearly £1 to £134 2s. 6d. per ton, but, in view of the uncertainty of the outlook and the absence of any official announcement regarding more drastic curtailment of production, the share market still had a hesitating appearance. The price of copper declined 10s. to £46 16s. 3d. per ton, and Rio Tinto were again freely offered on home and Paris account, and further declined to the extent of £1, closing at 33, or £6 15s. below the last making up price. Elsewhere San Francisco were dull on the news of the passing of the dividend, but Minerals Separation recovered in sympathy with Congo Border. Closing prices:—

ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY.

LORD KYLSANT'S STATEMENT.

NEW COMMITTEE AT WORK.

Lord Kylsant, presiding at the annual meeting of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, at the Cannon Street Hotel, London, yesterday, spoke of the arrangement for obtaining outside advice on the financial position of the company and its allied and subsidiary companies. The earnings for the first half of last year showed improvement over those for the previous year.

Lord Kylsant said:—"The prime cost of the whole fleet to build was over £106,000,000, and the vessels are written down in the books as at January 1, 1930, to £52,000,000

WRITING DOWN THE FLEET.

"On the basis of the depreciation that is allowed to shipping companies by the Inland Revenue authorities, which a life-long experience as a ship-owner has shown me to be a correct basis of depreciation, this fleet need only have been written down to £58,000,000, so that we have erred on the conservative side to the extent of having written down the fleet by over £6,000,000 in excess of the standard of the Inland Revenue authorities."

As at January 1, 1930, the total reserve funds of the Royal Mail group of shipping companies amounted to over £8,950,000; the insurance funds aggregated over £3,650,000, while other reserves and profits and loss account balances totalled over £2,650,000, making altogether £15,250,000.

BIG PROFITS.

Shipping has been passing through an abnormally difficult period in the last few years, and you may, therefore, be interested to know that during the last four years the gross profits of the Royal Mail group of shipping companies, before charging interest on depreciation, have averaged, even in these difficult times, over £5,000,000 per annum.

Dealing with the company's financial position, Lord Kylsant said:—"On the 19th May, 1930, we called a conference of our bankers and representatives of the Trade Facilities Act Advisory Committee and the Government of Northern Ireland, when I placed before them full information as to the position of the group.

THE NEW COMMITTEE.

A small committee was appointed, which, after going very fully into the whole position, reported to a meeting of the conference of bankers, held on June 10th, as a result of which it was arranged that this committee, consisting of Mr. F. Hyde, managing director of the Midland Bank, Limited; Brigadier-General Maxwell, managing partner in Glyn, Mills and Company, and Sir William McClintock, should confer with the Court of Directors of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company and with the Board of Directors of its various subsidiary and allied companies on matters relating to management, administration and finance, while the Chairman of the Trades Facilities Act Advisory Committee, Sir William Plender, will come into consultation with the committee. In addition, an invitation was extended to the Right Hon. Walter Runciman, M.P., to join the board of the various shipping companies. This committee will retain office until December 31st next, unless that period is extended. In the meantime, arrangements have been made with the Trades Facilities Act Advisory Committee and the Government of Northern Ireland to continue their facilities, and with the discount houses to continue the financial accommodation they have offered to the group. My colleagues and I wish to express cordial appreciation of the friendly and helpful spirit in which the members of the committee have dealt with the position, and to assure them of their desire to work in the fullest co-operation with them in regard to all matters on which it will be necessary to confer together.

CONFIDENCE IN THE FUTURE.

I have never been a pessimist about British shipping, and, provided we continue to receive the support of our friends, I feel certain that the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company and the group of shipping companies with which it is closely associated will, sooner than many people anticipate, experience a return to prosperity. (Cheers.)

Mr. Clark, a shareholder, addressing Lord Kylsant, said: "While we have sympathy with you, we also feel that liabilities have been entered into by this company without any reference to the shareholders. That is why the company is in this position to-day."

SOCIAL CRITICISM.

Mr. Stott, a shareholder, asked for fuller information. "You have begun to go on the right road," he said: "Proceed as you have begun and be a little more frank than you need be. In the past you have not been sufficiently frank. You, sir, are getting into the 'sere and yellow leaf.' You don't mind that?"

Lord Kylsant—Not in the least. (Laughter.)

Mr. Stott—You are at the head of one of the greatest organisations in the world. You have brought in Mr. Runciman. Go a little further. I have not a word to say about the present board, but I do not associate their names with any great brilliancy in the administration of shipping companies. (Laughter and cheers.) "You are not so young as you were," added Mr. Stott, "and you want with you the very best brains in the country that understand shipping through and through."

Mr. Walter Runciman, who was not present, was re-elected a director amid applause.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS EASIER.

GOLD GOING OUT.

There was an abundance of credit seeking employment yesterday, some of the banks letting out funds. Borrowers were usually able to obtain all the accommodation they needed at 2 p.c., while toward the close balances were offering at 1¾ p.c. Old money for either a day or a week was continued at 2 p.c., but a good business was reported in loans into July at 3 p.c. in preparation for the end of the half year.

The tendency of bill rates was rather easier, there being buyers of fine three months' maturities at 2 17/32 p.c. The new Treasuries were changing hands around 2 7/16 p.c.

In the absence of business, silver fell back ⅛d. to 15 11/16d. per oz. for spot and 15½d. for forward delivery. Gold remained at 85s. per oz. fine.

At the Bank of England £12 in bar gold was bought, making a net influx of £346,985 for the week.

Outstanding among the movements in the foreign exchange market yesterday was that of the Argentine dollar, which, after advancing, further weakened, and was finally quoted at 41¼. Sterling on New York was slightly lower on balance at 4.85 25/32, but the Montreal rate again finished without change at 4.85 11/16. In the Continental section Swiss francs were erratic. Pesetas closed at 41.52½, as against 41.65. The French exchange was steady throughout the day at 123.80, but improved slightly toward the close, and was finally quoted at 123.79, as compared with 123.81.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

CORK MANUFACTURING.—Final dividend of 7½ per cent. actual, less tax, making 10 per cent. for year; forward £1,762. (Last year 7 per cent.)

EDGAR ALLEN AND CO.—A dividend on Ord. of 6d. per share, less tax; forward £7,678. (Last year 2½ per cent., tax free.)

EAST KILBRIDE DAIRY FARMERS.—Final dividend on Ord. Shares of 7½ per cent., less tax, making 12½ per cent. for year.

GILFORD MOTOR CO.—Interim dividend of 7½ per cent. actual, less tax.

JOHN HUNTER MORRIS AND ELKAN.—Dividend on Ord. Shares of 10 per cent. per annum, less tax (same); forward £5,627.

JOKAI ASSAM TEA.—Final dividend of 12½ per cent., making 17½ per cent. for year, less tax. (Last year dividend was 30 per cent.)

MESSINA (TRANSVAAL) DEVELOPMENT CO.—Interim dividend in respect of the year ending 30th June, 1930, of 9d. per share, less tax.

MEXICAN RAILWAY'S HALF-YEAR.—The balance carried to net revenue account of the Mexican Railway Co. for the half-year ended December 31st, 1929, is $613,319, as compared with $692,623 in the second half of 1928. At the standard rate of 24d. to the peso this balance is equivalent to £61,332, to which is added interest £4,703 and transfer fees £92—£4,795—making a credit to net revenue of £66,127. Deducting Debenture interest £80,221, differences in exchange £4,117, and Mexican income tax £5,536—£89,874—there is a debit to net revenue of £23,747, and increasing the total debit of net revenue from £875,096 to £898,843. Since the net revenue for the half-year, after charging Debenture interest, etc., shows a loss, no payment is due to the trustees of the registered stock, issue "A." The company was, however, able to redeem a further 10 per cent. of the original amount of that stock on January 1st last, and has decided to make a similar redemption on July 1st next, by which date 70 per cent. of the total issue will have been redeemed, leaving outstanding £188,091, out of an original £626,972. Receipts from working for the half-year under review, states the report, were adversely affected by a landslide in September and a strike in December. In this connection it is estimated that the consequent loss of earnings amounted to $400,000.

NORTH HUMMOCK SELANGOR RUBBER CO.—Dividend of 3 per cent., less tax, for year ended 31st March, 1930.

NEUCHATEL ASPHALTE.—Dividend for year 1929 of 1/- per Ord. Share, less tax; £68,556 forward.

STERNOL.—Interim dividend of 4 per cent. actual on Cum. Part. Prefd. Ord. 10/- Shares.

SCOTTISH ASSAM TEA.—Dividend at rate of 10 per cent. per annum, less tax. (Last year dividend was 20 per cent.)

TREDEGAR IRON AND COAL COMPANY.—Profit for the year, including dividends from subsidiary companies and other investments, was £104,453, against £46,151 last year. Amount brought forward £40,692, making £145,145. The directors recommend that this amount should be appropriated as follows:—Depreciation £10,000, dividend of 5 per cent., free of tax, on the "A" and "B" Shares (against 2½ per cent.) £86,555, carrying forward £48,590. An amount of £76,162, provided out of profits of past years for certain contingencies which have not arisen, has been transferred to general reserve, and this has been brought up to £100,000.

VAN RYN GOLD MINES ESTATE.—A dividend number 53 has been declared of 2½ per cent. (6d. per share), free of income tax, for the half-year ending 30th June, 1930, which, together with the interim dividend of 2½ per cent. (6d. per share) paid in January last, makes a total dividend for the financial year ending 30th June, 1930, of 5 per cent. (1/- per share). The dividend now declared is equivalent to a gross dividend of 6.89d. per share, less income tax (reduced by relief in respect of Dominion taxes).

REFUSAL TO ACCEPT OFFICE.

LABOUR AND GRANGEGORMAN DEPUTY-CHAIRMANSHIP.

At the meeting of the Grangegorman Mental Hospital Joint Committee, held yesterday, Mr. C. M. Byrne, Chairman, presiding, Mr. P. Mulvany proposed, and Mr. P. J. Curran seconded, the re-election of the Chairman for the ensuing twelve months.

The motion was passed unanimously.

The Chairman proposed the re-election of Mr. Colm Lawless as Deputy-Chairman, but Senator Foran said that Mr. Lawless had definitely decided not to accept office.

Mr. Curran proposed Senator Foran.

Senator Foran said that on principle he could not accept office, because Labour representatives were in the majority at the meeting. He had some sense of proportion, and did not want to take advantage of the members who were not doing their duty on the Board by their non-attendance. In order to get over the difficulty he would suggest that the election of Deputy Chairman be deferred.

The suggestion was adopted.

Irish Farming Review

Haymaking on Mr. Joseph O'Neill's farm at Kinsealy, County Dublin.

WHEAT—BEEF—MILK.

DIVERGING AGRICULTURAL POLICIES.

THE peoples of Great Britain, whose farming problems differ sharply, not only as between England and Wales or England and Scotland, but even from farm to farm, are being offered divergent policies by those politicians who compete for the agricultural vote. As it is possible that one of these policies, or a compromise of them on a three-party basis, will modify and may even transform British farming, with consequent reactions on Irish agriculture, it is to the interests of Irish farmers and their friends to think them out. Mr. Baldwin's speech, as the latest, and most clearly outlined, raises, for instance, issues on which Ireland, irrespective of State and Party, must do its own thinking. He sees in wheat the key to English farming, and is prepared to give a guaranteed price for wheat, the figure to be arrived at after consultation with the farming interests involved.

Realising the amazement produced amongst English farmers, when the legislative promise of a former Government was deliberately broken by the repeal of the guaranteeing Act, his pledge is to be redeemable over an agreed period of years. Oats, too, are to have the protection of his party, not necessarily, indeed, tariff protection, but the prohibition of dumped imports; if treaties stand in the way they can be denounced. In respect of barley, he is prepared to go a step further and try an import duty. But the importation of milk (and presumably milk products) cannot, he is convinced, be stopped; the towns would not stand for any form of protection in these food products. We are not concerned just now with the feasibility of these proposals or the support they may receive, but their importance, if adopted, in modifying Irish agricultural policy demands consideration.

Rural Needs and Urban Demands.

On another aspect of his policy Mr. Baldwin was less specific than Mr. Lloyd George, who, when interviewed earlier in the month, declared in favour of compulsory marketing. Mr. Baldwin holds that compulsion cannot be applied by the State, and applauds the National Farmers' Union policy of inquiry into the possibility of farmers applying it themselves—presumably under State aegis, but on the farmers' own initiative. There is another point, too, on which Mr. Baldwin's view seems to differ from that of either of the oppositions. If Mr. Lloyd George speaks, as we assume, for the Liberal view, and Mr. Johnson, Under-Secretary for Scotland, for the Government's, we may expect to find the new Minister for Agriculture attempting to set up a Wheat Import Board, unless the urban vote becomes vocally hostile or the three British parties come together and frame a common policy. This possibility is being envisaged by the party leaders.

Meanwhile, so far as wheat is concerned, Mr. Baldwin's speech has had the cordial endorsement of the National Farmers' Union; and although we have been credibly informed that that body does not adequately represent the average working English farmer, it is a not unimportant force in the manufacture of agricultural opinion. Should farming opinion in England speak with two voices, while the English artisan emphatically insists on cheap cereals, cheap milk and cheap meat, nothing may be done.

Scotland, less interested in wheat as a key to the position than in the marketing of potatoes and milk, is insistent that something must be done. It will not be surprising if a move is made to establish a milk pool on a majority vote of the milk producers. That is already the policy of the Scottish Agricultural Organisation Society, and it seems to have found favour in high places.

Key Industries and Irish Farming.

When Mr. Baldwin informed his Wickham audience of what they know only too well, that identical agricultural policies are not always suitable even to different portions of the same farm, he might have been speaking for Ireland, in spite of the smallness of our average holdings. Here, if there is a key, it is not wheat, but milk; if there is a second, it is beef, cattle and "stores." But is there? We realise, of course, that the cattle industry as a whole is our greatest asset, but in some districts the key which unlocks the dairying industry locks the beef-cattle industry, or at the least makes effective access difficult. In several, improved access to the industries, based on milk and milk-products, admits the producer to a wider command of the pig and bacon industries. In other places these complications are either absent or may be ignored.

Farming is a subject on which, because dogmatism is difficult, policy may well be tentative; but the two proposed English policies, or a compromise between them, although they can scarcely fail in some degree to affect Irish farming, are not likely immediately to injure it. Mr. Baldwin's repudiation of protection for the milk industry should mean that the right of free entry for Irish butter and milk products into Britain will not be interfered with. As these stood at over four and a half millions sterling for 1929, about a tenth of our total exports and over a quarter of our food exports, the importance of this is obvious. Even "Empire preference" is of much less value to us than the continuance of the privilege of free export, which we now enjoy.

On the other hand, a policy of preference in Britain for British cereals would only affect us if a barley tariff seriously reacted upon our exports of drink. Our exports of cereals and feeding stuffs taken together totalled, roughly, half a million in 1929. That is not negligible, but against similar imports of over eleven and a quarter millions for the same year it is not a serious factor in our economic position. Our drink export was close on five millions, but that, however important, is only indirectly an item of agricultural policy, and it is arguable that an import duty on barley in Britain might stimulate the brewers' demand for Irish barley here. Nor do we believe that the improved price hoped for by the adoption of a pooling policy for milk in Scotland—it is not proposed for England, but the example of the smaller country might be copied in the bigger—would unfavourably affect the Irish export of dairying supplies or their price to the producer. Such effects, though slight and dubious, should be rather to his advantage.

Present Policy and Future Outlook in Ireland.

But if neither the policy of a wheat board, plus a milk pool, nor that of the fostering, by deliberate State policy, of British cereals for British people need alarm Irish producers, there is much in this new tendency of British politicians to take farming industries under their wing, which challenges serious thinking. It would be inexpedient to put all our eggs into one farm basket (even if these eggs were really cattle or other live stock and their products). We are still convinced that increased tillage should be measured rather by the requirements of our cattle industry than by momentary conditions in the cereal markets, but we think a balanced production—in which dairying, where the land admits of it, shall take the principal place, with beef cattle, or stores, sheep and pigs as alternatives (in some districts substitutes and in others auxiliary developments)—forms the best line on which farming should continue to develop.

No temptation to snatch at a temporary advance in price for non-dairying cattle should induce the farmer who is depressed by a low price for butter to deplete seriously his milking stock. No doubts regarding the future of the bacon trade, in which, as Mr. Slattery has been reminding Co. Kerry producers, Denmark has recently made such rapid strides, should make him give up breeding suitable "baconers," where, with the aid of a creamery, he can do so economically. The aim in these branches of his business should be to produce more and better milk, more and better cattle, more and better pigs. On the other hand, those areas better suited to beef production than butter production may take some encouragement from the view of that noted authority, Sir W. Haldane, that for a good while to come Britain will need more beef than is likely to be exported to her by the extra-European exporters, and the price should thus remain fair to the producer who can raise cattle economically.

In brief, it is generally a short-sighted policy to abandon a branch of farming which the skill, experience and shrewdness of generations of farmers have built up, because of a temporary set-back, or, on the other hand, to assume that an advance in price will prove permanent, and to neglect one side of the industry in favour of over-development in another.

But—and this is the principal point we wish to make—farmers live in a world in which they are largely at the mercy of the world market. Changes in policy amongst our principal customers must be closely watched. Those here discussed may make it expedient for us some day to adjust our own, though, so far as live stock and butter are concerned, not seriously.

MEAT SUPPLIES IN BRITAIN.

A MARKET FOR IRISH PRODUCE.

IRISH cattle breeders and feeders should take some heed of the alarm expressed by the National Federation of Meat Traders with regard to the continued decrease in the production of home-killed meat in the British Isles. At a meeting of the Federation held in North Wales the British Government was called upon, in view of this, to consider the position in the event of imported supplies being diverted to another country.

Here is an incentive to Irish farmers to increase the size of their flocks and herds. There is undoubtedly a demand for as much stock as we can supply on the other side of the water. It will take a couple of years to increase supplies to any great extent, but farmers who look to the future will probably do so without much compulsion.

The Fresh Meat Trade.

It will probably be possible to take advantage of the present situation by developing the fresh meat trade. A beginning has been made with pork and lamb. The demand for one follows the other, and, with improvements in the matter of transport, trade in this direction should become permanent. To ensure this, there has just been passed through the Dail and Senate, a measure for regulating the export trade in fresh meat from the Irish Free State. Under this Act, abattoirs where animals are to be killed for export will be subject to inspection, and must be registered, while all meat must reach an approved standard of quality. With proper cooling and transit arrangements, this legislation should do much to help the export trade in fresh meat. It will come into operation on the 1st July next.

Law for All Ireland.

Similar legislation is under consideration in the Northern Ireland Parliament, although in the Six Counties the conditions regarding slaughter differ from those in the Irish Free State. In that part of the country pigs are usually slaughtered on the farms, and the carcases are examined as soon as they reach the market.

In both cases the meat is already examined with care for home consumption, but under the new legislation the examination will be extended to meat intended for export. Without such provisions as are contained in the Agricultural Produce (Fresh Meat) Act traders are at liberty to send away meat of any quality they like, with serious effects on the trade, which is steadily developing, and no one who has the interests of the country at heart will dispute its necessity.

VALUE OF MILKING MACHINES.

THERE is now no doubt that dairy cows can be successfully milked by machinery. They can be milked in this way just as effectively as by hand, provided someone follows the machine for the purpose of "stripping." It would, however, seem to be desirable that machine milking should not be tried in the case of cows which are well on in their lactation period. It is best to use the machine on cows which have freshly calved, as they then become accustomed to it quickly, and there is less danger of them holding up their milk. If the place where dairy cows are milked is kept clean, there is no reason why the milk should not be free from foreign matter, even though milked by hand, provided the milker has taken the precaution of cleaning his hands. Cleanliness is also an essential of success in the working of milking machines. A striking example of the way in which milking should be conducted in order to obtain the best results was afforded to members of East Limerick Cow Testing Associations at the Albert College Farm, Glasnevin, a few days ago. Here the cows are brought in to a roomy byre and milked with a Gascoigne milker, a feature of which is the simplicity of the teat cups. Such a machine as this is specially useful when difficulty is found in getting milkers to come in on Sundays or on other occasions when they want to be off enjoying themselves. Experience has shown that for a herd of thirty dairy cows a milking machine becomes at once a practical proposition, because it is in use twice daily every day of the year, and, with ordinary care, soon pays for itself.

EXCEPT for jam-making, cider-making and canning, fruit exported from Northern Ireland must, under new legislation, be properly graded and packed in suitable boxes or cases. This will especially apply to soft fruits.

THE Cork Farmers' Union Year Book and Diary for 1930-31 is a very useful publication, brimful of practical information.

FATTENING CHICKENS.

PROVIDING AGAINST THE EGG SLUMP.

ONE branch of poultry farming much neglected in this country is the production of good table birds. With the exception of two counties in the Free State, the fattening of chickens has not been seriously taken up on any extensive scale. This seems a pity, as if properly carried out there is plenty of money to be made in the fattening industry. It would appear that in their anxiety to produce more and more eggs, poultry-keepers have lost sight of the fact that when the summer slump comes is the time to provide against losses by being able to market regular supplies of fat chickens, ducks and even hens, which have been found unsatisfactory as layers and which are yet young enough to make a tasty dish. Of course, the production of the spring chicken is the most profitable of all, but then it calls for autumn hatching and winter rearing and fattening, which only those with suitable equipment and artificial methods can undertake.

The Surplus Stock.

There is nothing, however, to hinder anyone who keeps poultry from fattening off their surplus stock at this time of year, and thus securing for themselves a better profit than if, as is usually done, the birds are given to dealers for anything they will fetch; the dealers very often export these birds to Sussex, the English centre of the industry, whence in a few weeks time they are sold at top prices as "Sussex fattened chickens." People often wonder at this season what they are going to do with all their cockerels and some of them cherish fond hopes of getting fancy prices for them later on for stock purposes, but it seldom pays to keep them on with this object, unless they are pedigree birds of proved worth. It would be far better if they first of all separated them from the pullets, as should always be done when the chickens are about six weeks old, and feed them well the whole time keeping them always in a thriving condition. Then when about nine weeks old they should be kept in close confinement, either in small houses or better still in fattening coops and finished off in from two to three weeks.

Essentials for Success.

One condition, however, that is of primary importance in the production of table chickens is the selection of breed and the person who intends to take it up in real earnest must select the breed that will give good table birds, and at the same time produce a fair amount of eggs. It is well enough for a summer trade to fatten up the surplus stock, which may be anything or everything, so long as they are not Leghorns, which defy all attempts of the fattener's art, but when it comes to an all the year round supply there is no getting away from it that the Light Sussex is undoubtedly the best table bird. It has the beautiful white flesh, large frame and deep body that we look for in the table fowl, and has also the advantage of being a good winter layer. The Faverolle comes next in suitability, while such breeds as the Barred Rock, the Rhode Island Red and the Wyandotte make quite good birds, they would never rank as first class chickens and consequently could not fetch as good prices as either the Light Sussex or the Faverolle. Defective birds, such as those with crooked breast-bones, will not be successful in the fattening pen; neither will quarrelsome ones, or those that have been neglected in their early days and have become stunted. But, given healthy, well-conditioned birds of the right breed and type, there should be no difficulty in turning out a good table chicken.

Feeding.

The best food to finish off the birds after they have been cooped is Sussex ground oats, wet with milk to a semi-moist condition. Home-grown oats can, of course, be used with equal success, provided that it is ground as fine as possible. It is not an easy matter to get it in as fine a state as Sussex ground oats, and where it is "husky" and rough it does not give satisfaction. Barley meal and pollard may also be used, but the largest proportion of the food should consist of the ground oats. The food is more easily digested if wet twelve hours before it is required, and kept in a cool place in a tub or such vessel. Separated milk, skim-milk and buttermilk are equally suitable. If it is not practicable to use milk, the meal may be moistened with greasy water—water in which meat has been boiled—or clean water, adding, in this case, a little meat chopped finely. If the birds are fasted for a day after being put in confinement they will feed better afterwards, and should not go off their food for about a fortnight. At the end of this time they will most likely be in good marketable condition, but if it is desired to keep them on longer it may be necessary to cram them, as otherwise they are inclined to loss of appetite with consequent loss of weight.

STAMPING OUT WARBLES.

A NEW WASH FOR CATTLE.

A NEW method of dealing with warbles in cattle has been tried with success during recent experiments in Worcestershire and North Wales. The new treatment for warbled cattle originated in America, and consists of a wash made with derris powder, which is toxic to warbles. Under ordinary farm conditions and in experimental tests, derris powder (fawn, finely ground, 3s. per lb.) from source Q. gave a hundred per cent. kill, not a live warble being found on treated stock a fortnight after the wash had been applied. Derris powder varies in toxic quality according to source of origin, and consequently it will be necessary for users to get a garantee from the firm supplying it.

LOW WOOL PRICES.

The directors of the Australian Pastoral Co., Ltd., have sent a circular letter to the holders of the Consolidated Ordinary stock of the company reminding them that in the chairman's speech at the annual general meeting on January 21st it was stated that no interim dividend could be paid this year. Indeed, the circular states, the low prices ruling for wool and the difficulty in making sales of sheep and cattle have so seriously affected the income of the company during the year closing June 30th next, that the profit and loss account cannot be satisfactory, though with approximately half of the company's wool clip not yet available for sale, and the much firmer tone of the recent wool sales, the results of the year cannot at this date be accurately estimated.
